SAVANNAH.

VERY IMPORTANT SUCCESS

CAPTURE OF FORT M'ALLISTER.

Sherman Carries it by Storm on the 14th.

THE OGECHEE RIVER OPEN

The Army Well Established on the Coast.

SAVANNAH SURE TO FALL.

Reported Capture of the City via Charleston.

Reports from Richmond Papers of Yesterday.

Official Dispatch from the War Department.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, Friday, Dec. 16, 8:30 P. M.

To Maj.-Gen. Dix:

Richmond papers of to-day state that on Wednesday Gen. Sherman carried Fort McAllister, commanding the entrance to the Ogeechee River, by storm, and that the capture of this position puts Sherman in communication with the Yankee fleet, and necessitates the reinforcement of Savannah.

The Lispatch has the following:

"Official intelligence was received yesterday that the enemy on Friday carried Fort McAllister by storm. The garrison of the fort consisted of a hundred and fifty men. Fort McAllister is on the Ogeechee River, fifteen miles southwest of Savannah, at the point where the river is crossed by the Savannah, Albany and Gulf Railroad, and about six miles from the Ossabaw Sound. The capture of this position puts Sherman in communication with the Yankee fleet.

Without attempting any military criticism, we cannot withhold the opinion that the exposing of one hundred men to the assault of Sherman's whole army, was a piece of extravagance that our present military resources do not seem to warrant."

The Examiner has the following:

"Fort McAllister commands the entrance to the Ogeechee River, and has prevented the enemy heretofore from ascending the river. We believe there are other works further up the stream, which would render the navigation of the stream by the enemy extremely uncomfortable. The fall of Fort McAllister does not by any means involve the loss of Savannah, but will necessitate the reinforcement of the troops defending that city."

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

REPORTED FALL OF SAVANNAH.

Arrival of the Steamer Varuna at Annapolis—Reported Capture of Savannah via Charleston Harbor.

BALTIMORE, Friday, Dec. 16.

The American has just received a dispatch from Annapolis, stating that the steamer Varuna had just arrived from Charleston with the news that Gen Sherman had captured Savannah, with 1,100 prisoners, after eight hours' fighting.

LATER.

THE CAPTURE RE-AFFIRMED.

ELEVEN THOUSAND PRISONERS TAKEN.

BALTIMORE, Friday, Dec. 16.

The correspondent of the American at Annapolis telegraphs as follows:

The steamship Varuna left Charleston bar on the 14th inst. at 8 o'clock in the morning.

The report had reached there by the flag-of-truce boat, that Sherman was in possession of Savannah, after an eight hours' fight, capturing eleven thousand prisoners.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Dec. 16.

The President to-day received a dispatch from headquarters at City Point, containing the announcement from Richmond papers of to-day that Gen. Sherman has captured fort McAllister. This settles the question of the triumphant issue of Sherman's magnificent march, the possession of fort McAllister opens up the Ogeechee River in the rear of Savannah, and gives him command of the railroad leading south from that city. This completes the circle of investment of Savannah, and places in the hands of Sherman every railroad leading to or from that point, his army being already planted on the Central Georgia Railroad. And the line between Savannah and Charleston being cut, nothing, in fact, could be more admirable that the position in which Sherman's army is now placed; for while hold Savannah in siege, he has an open line of water communication by the Ogeechee to Ossaban Sound.

This avenue of approach to the rear of Savannah has for three years been guarded by Fort McAllister, a powerful sand fort, mounting eight heavy guns en barbette. Admiral Dupont, in the Spring of 1863, made two attempts, with his formidable iron-clad fleet, to take this fort; but after a protracted bombardment, failed—several of the monitors being disabled in the attack. It would appear that Sherman has swung round his right wing, resting it on the Ogeechee, and capturing the fort at the same time. This insures the capture of Savannah, if it be not already in our possession. The highest delight is felt here at this successful continuation of the Georgia campaign.

Fort McAllister.

Fort McAllister, which was captured on the 14th inst. by Gen. Sherman, is a very strong earthwork situated on the Ogeechee River, about sixteen miles south of the mouth of the Savannah River, and about six miles from the mouth of Ossabaw Sound. This part of the coast of Georgia is of that amphibious character which marks so much of the Southern coast in general—the raveled and unfinished ends of nature's web, where sea and land keep up a mutual warfare. The ocean breaks in between Great Wassaw and Ossabaw Islands, forming Ossabaw Sound, and into this estuary flow the Great and Little Ogeechee and the Vernon Rivers. The land or rather the march on each side of the Ogeechee, is almost à fleur d' eau, certainly hardly rising a foot above the level of the river, while at times it is entirely submerged. For miles and miles on every hand there is nothing to be seen but these low and level islands and islets, covered with reeds and rank grasses, save where a lustier vegetation has pushed up in occasional clumps of trees called "hummocks."

About six miles from the mouth of Ossabaw Sound, near where the Savannah, Albany and Gulf Railroad crosses the Ogeechee, the river jets out into a promontory named Point Genesis, covered by one of these hummocks of more than ordinary size. Behind this, hidden from the river, lies Fort McAllister, an earthwork of immense strength, erected by the rebels early in the war. Its batteries completely commanded the river.

Fort McAllister, which has just succumbed to an attack from the land side, had previously bid defiance to two attacks from our naval forces. The first of these took place nearly two years ago. On the 27th of January, 1863, the monitor Montauk, commanded by Capt. Worden, bombarded its earthen walls for nearly six hours, without either receiving or doing much damage. Each appeared to be invincible against the other. The second and more important attack was made on the 3d of March, 1863. The vessels employed in this engagement were the monitors Montauk, Passaic, Patapsco and Nahant, and the gunboats Senaca, Wissahickon and Dawn, and several mortar-schooners. This formidable force rained a storm of shot and shell upon the fort for one whole day, with no more damage to the rebels than the dismounting of a gun or two. Late in the afternoon the fleet was withdrawn, uninjured, and the vessels dropped down the stream, the rebels coming out on the parapets and cheering a defiant adieu.

Near Fort McAllister the blocade-runner Nashville was destroyed on the 28th of February, 1863, by the Montauk.

SOUTHWESTERN VIRGINIA

Great Raid by Burbridge and Stoneman.

The Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Destroyed.

Bristol, Abingdon, and Marion Captured.

MOVEMENT UPON THE REBEL SALT WORKS.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16—8:30 P. M.

To Maj.-Gen. Dix:

The Richmond papers of to-day confirm the reported capture of Bristol, by an expedition supposed to be under command of Stoneman and Burbridge; also the surprise and capture of the Glade Spring Depot, on the railroad, thirteen miles south of Abington, Va.

FROM CITY POINT.

CITY POINT, Va., Friday, Dec. 16.

The Richmond Dispatch of to-day, after fully confirming the previous reports of the capture of Bristol, states:

"The enemy then advanced up the railroad toward Abingdon, which we presume fell into their hands, though we have no information of the fact. The next we hear of them, they had at 9 o'clock yesterday morning pounced down on Glades Spring, a depot on the railroad, thirteen miles this side of Abindon, taking every one there by surprise and capturing all of the railroad employes except one, who managed to escape to tell the tale. At last accounts the enemy were pushing up the railroad in the direction of Marion, which is 27 miles on this side of Abingdon. This is a raid in Breckinridge's rear. The raiders, leaving his forces somewhere in the neighborhood of Knoxville, came up the north side of the Holston River and crossed over to Bristol. It is probable the raiders separated, one party proceeding to Bristol, and the other to Abingdon. If unchecked, it is likely they will come up the railroad even as far as Salem, and thence escape to the Kanawha by the route followed by Hunter, last Summer. It is unknown who is in command of this expedition, but it looks very much like some of Stoneman's galloping work. None of the dispatches received say anything about Saltville. If it is unprotected, it has doubtless been visited by the enemy. If, however, there were any troops there, the Yankees were apt to fight shy of it, and confine their operations to the railroad.

At Glade's Spring the enemy captured an engine and fourteen flats, with some railroad hands. On these a party of men were mounted, and sent up the road toward Marion, and a dispatch from the operator at that place on yesterday, tells us that they were, at two o'clock, within a mile of that place. Their object is easily divined. It is to burn the bridge over the Holston River, and break the road to prevent troops from being sent down the line by stehm to reinforce Saltville. To Saltville, the main body will undoubtedly go, and in all human probability has already gone. There are some fortifications at Saltville and some reserves, whose numbers we do not know. If these can check them by any sacrifice, reinforcements will soon put the place out of danger. At present it is certainly in great danger."

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

Hood's Official Report of the Battle of Franklin.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—10:30 P. M.

Maj.-Gen. Dix:

The Western telegraph lines are working very badly on account of the rainstorms prevailing. The following unofficial dispatches have been received:

NASHVILLE, Dec. 16—(Hour not stated.)

"Just returned from the battle-field. Battle severe and terrific. Our forces victorious."

NASHVILLE, Thursday, Dec. 16—2:15 P. M.

Hood has fallen back, and is apparently doing his best to get away, while Thomas is pressing him with great vigor, frequently capturing guns and men. Everything, so far, is perfectly successful, and the prospect is fair to crush Hood's army.

There is nothing since my last dispatch from any other quarter. EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

THE BATTLE OF THURSDAY.

Official Dispatch from Gen. Thomas—The Rebels Driven Eight Miles—Capture of Sixteen Guns, and the Headquarters and Train of the Rebel Gen. Chalmers.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—9:15 A. M.

Major-Gen. John A. Dix:

The following official report of the battle before Nashville, has been received from Major-Gen. Thomas:

NASHVILLE, Tenn. Dec. 15—9 A. M.

Attacked the enemy's left this morning, and drove it from the river below the city very nearly to the Franklin pike, a distance of about eight miles. Have captured Chalmer's headquarters and train, and a second train of about twenty wagons, with between eight hundred and one thousand prisoners, and sixteen pieces of artillery. Our troops behaved splendidly, all taking their share in assaulting and charging the enemy's breastworks. I shall attack the enemy again to-morrow, if he stands to fight, and if he retreats during the night, I will pursue him, throwing a heavy cavalry force in his rear to destroy his trains if possible.

GEORGE H. THOMAS, Major-General.

An unofficial dispatch gives the following details:

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Thursday, Aug. 15—10:30 P. M.

Our line advanced and engaged the rebel line at 9 this A. M. The line was formed thus: Steedman on the left; T. J. Wood, with the Fourth Corps next; A. J. Smith next, with Cox in reserve next, and the cavalry under Wilson, fighting dismounted, occupying the extreme right, aided by gunboats on the river. The artillery practice has been fine, and at times the musketry firing continuous and heavy, and though the casualties have been light, the results are very fair. The left occupied the same ground as in the morning, but the right has advanced five miles, driving the enemy from the river, from his intrenchments, from the range of hills on which his left rested, and forced it back upon his right and centre.

His centre was pushed back from one to three miles, with a loss in all of seventeen guns, and about fifteen hundred prisoners, and his whole line of earthworks, except about a mile on his extreme right, where no serious attempt was made to dislodge him.

The whole of Hood's army is here, except the cavalry and one division, which has been detached to threaten or attack Mufreesboro.

The whole action of to-day was splendidly successful.

The divisions commanded by Gen. Kimball of the Fourth Corps, by Gen. Garrard of the command under Gen. A. J. Smith, and the cavalry division under Gen. Knipe, were under my observation, and I have never seen better work. Gen. Kimball's division carried two fortified positions by assault, with very slight loss, capturing at one point four hundred prisoners and six guns.

No doubt the other part of the line did as well I only speak of what I saw.

No intelligence has been received from Gen. Sherman's army later than the published dispatches transmitted by Gen. Foster and Admiral Dahlgren.

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

GEN. CANBY'S CO-OPERATION.

Successful Expedition in Mississippi—Hood's Communications with Mobile Severed—Great Loss of Rebel Officers in the Battle of Franklin.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—8:15 P. M.

To Maj.-Gen. Dix, New-York:

Official dispatches from Gen. Canby have been received to-day, showing the complete success of an expedition sent by him from Vicksburgh to cooperate with Gen. Sherman's operations, and cut Hood's communications with Mobile.

Gen. Canby also reports the probable success of another expedition from Baton Rouge, under command of Gen. Davidson, the details and object of which it is not proper now to disclose. When last heard from, Davidson was reported as having caused quite a panic in Mobile, and to be devastating the country generally. Lieut.-Col. Earl, commanding a special party, was severely wounded, and fell into the hands of the enemy at Fayette, Miss.

Richmond papers of to-day contain Gen. Hood's official report of the battle of Franklin, in which he acknowledges the "loss of many gallant officers and brave men," among whom he enumerates Maj.-Gen. Cleburne, Brig.-Gens. John Williams, Adams, Geist, Strohl and Granberry, killed; Maj.-Gen. John Brown, and Brig.-Gens. S. Carter, Manigault, Quarles, Cockerill and Scott, wounded, and Brig.-Gen. Gordon captured.

The dispatches of Gen. Canby, so far as is proper for publication, and the extracts from the Richmond papers giving Hood's official report of the battle, and our success in Southwestern Virginia and in Georgia, are subjoined:

GEN. CANBY'S REPORT.

NEW-ORLEANS, La., Dec. 9, 1864.

On the 25th ult. I reported that movements coöperative with Gen. Sherman's operations, would be made from Vicksburgh and Baton Rouge, for the purpose of cutting Hood's communications with Mobile. The expedition sent from Vicksburgh, and consisting of about 2,000 cavalry and eight pieces of artillery, under the command of E. D. Ostrand, of the Third Colored Cavalry, returned on the 4th inst., having met with complete success. After an admirably executed movement on Jackson, on the 24th ult., the expedition started for the Big Black bridge, on the Mississippi Central Railroad, which was reached on the 27th, and after a stubborn resistance, they captured and destroyed it.

This cuts Hood's army off from the large quantities of supplies and stores accumulated at Jackson, Miss., and makes that railroad, which was his main reliance, unavailable to him for some months to come.

Besides this important bridge and trestle work, the following property was completely destroyed: Thirty miles of track, including culverts, the wagon bridges on the Big Black, Vaughn, Pickett and Goodman Stations, with all the railroad depots and buildings; twenty-six hundred bales of cotton, two locomotives, four cars, four stage-coaches, twenty barrels of salt, and $160,000 worth of stores at Vaughn's Station.

The expedition was considerably harassed on its return by large bodies of the enemies forces, but suffered no material losses, and brought back more recruits than its entire loss in effective men. Maj. J. B. Cook, commanding the Third (colored) Cavalry, distinguished himself and his regiment greatly, by the gallantry with which the force guarding the Big Black bridge were driven from behind their strong stockdes on the opposite side of the river. Our men had to charge across the bridge dismounted, with nothing but railroad ties for a path, and in the face of a sharp fire.

I have announced Major Cook in general orders as promoted to the vacant Lieutenant-Colonelcy of the regiment, subject to the approval of the President.

(Signed.) E. R. S. CANBY, Major-General.

HOOD'S OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE BATTLE OF FRANKLIN.

From the Richmond Dispatch, Dec. 16.

Gen. Hood's official report of the battle of Franklin has at last been received. It will be seen that our reported extraordinary loss of general officers is but too true. The following is Gen. Hood's dispatch:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF TENNESSEE, SIX MILES FROM NASHVILLE, Dec. 8, 1864, VIA MOBILE Dec. 9.

To Hon. J. A. Seddon:

About 4 o'clock P. M., Nov. 30, we attacked the enemy at Franklin and drove them from their centre line of temporary works into the inner lines, which they evacuated during the night, leaving their dead and wounded in our possession, and retired to Nashville, closely followed by our cavalry. We captured several stands of colors and about 1,000 prisoners. Our troops fought with great gallantry. We have to lament the loss of many gallant officers and men. Maj.-Gen. Cleburne and Brig.-Gens. John Williams, Adams, Giest, Strahl and Granbury were killed. Maj.-Gen. John Brown and Brig.-Gens. S. Carter, Marignault, Quarles, Cockerell and Scott were wounded. Brig.-Gen. Gordon was captured.

(Signed,) J. B. HOOD, Gen.

A subsequent telegram from Gen. Hood says that our loss of officers was excessively large in proportion to the loss of men.

THE NAVAL PART OF THE FIGHT.

Official Dispatch from Admiral Lee.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Dec. 16.

The following has been received at the Navy Department:

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 16—10 A. M.

To Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

Gen. Thomas' attack yesterday upon Hood's left, supported by the Tenth Division of this squadron, resulted in the capture of Chalmer's headquarters' train, with papers, 1,000 prisoners, and sixteen pieces of artillery. The probable loss to the army will not exceed 500 killed and wounded.

The attack will be resumed this morning.

Capture of a Large Amount of Commissary Stores—The Expedition up Roanoke River—Loss of the Gunboat Otsego and Picket-boat No. 5—Reported Capture of Kinston and the Railroad Bridge.

NEWBERN, Tuesday, Dec. 13.

The expedition sent from Roanoke Island to Pitch Landing, on the Roanoke River, on the 3d inst., under command of Col. Clark, met with complete success. Nearly a million dollars' worth of rebel commissary stores were destroyed, and 83 bales of cotton, and a number of prisoners, mules and army wagons were captured.

News from the Union expedition, now moving up the Roanoke River, has been received. The gunboat Otsego, when above Jamestown, ran into a torpedo, by which she was blown up and totally destroyed. The picket-boat Basly, No. 5, met with the same fate. Only two lives, however, were lost. The expedition proceeded on to its destination.

It is reported here, this morning, that our forces have captured Kinston, where they have struck the railroad, and are still moving on into the interior.

Necrology of the Union Captives.

Glimpses of Life in the Hospital and Life in the Stockade.

From Our Special Correspondent.

FLAG-OF-TRUCE STEAMER NEW-YORK, OFF FORT SUMTER, CHARLESTON, S. C., Monday, Dec. 12, 1864.

In fulfillment of the promise made in the closing paragraph of my last letter, I send herewith a long list of names of the soldiers deceased at Savannah, Florence and Andersonville. I have no heart, for the present at least, to write further details of the revolting cruelties practiced upon our captives in the South, and shall thus spare your readers for a time the perusal of what must be a dismal, soul-sickening record. Surely the facts already presented have been convincing enough even for the most charitably inclined persons, to believe that the deliberate charge of "barbarity" I have made against the rebel authorities was founded in truth.

DEATHS IN THE SAVANNAH PRISON HOSPITALS.

The following is a list of Union prisoners who died in the prison hospital at Savannah Georgia, from the 12th of September to the 14th of November, 1864, inclusive. It is taken from the official register, and, consequently must be correct. When the prisoners were removed from Savannah to Millen, there were 350 patients in the hospital, of which one hundred were able to bear the fatigue of transportation. Of the fate of the remaining two hundred and fifty I have no information:

PARTIAL LIST OF DEATHS AT FLORENCE.

Your readers will remember, as I have stated the fact in previous letters, the mortality among the thirty thousand prisoners confined at Andersonville, Geo., became so frightful—averaging one hundred a day during the month of August—that the rebel authorities were compelled, in their efforts to defend the neighborhood from a pestilence, to break up that dreadful prison. Part of the capitves were temporarily transferred to Savannah, where they were treated with comparative kindness by the women of the city, who are spoken of as having contributed generously to the comfort of the sick. From Savannah, after a sojourn at that place of about a month, these prisoners were transferred to a pen at Millen, which had been stockaded for their reception. The other portion of the Andersonville prisoners—about 15,000—were sent to Florence, S. C., where their sufferings were only alleviated so far as this, that the prison-grounds were healthier, and there was more room to move about. The deaths at Florence from scurvy and diarrhœa, during the three months since the camp was established at that place, are estimated to have reached the aggregate of sixteen hundred. Here, as at Andersonville, there appears to have been no pretence on the part of the prison authorities of keeping a correct list of the deceased, and probably hundreds have been buried in unknown graves. Indeed corpses are said to have sometimes remained for as long a period as two days in the stockade before the small detail of negroes appointed for the purpose by the rebels found time to remove them for burial, unconfined, in the pits they had carelessly prepared.

THE OPDYKE-WEED LIBEL SUIT.

Continuation of the Proceedings Before the Supreme Court.

On the opening of the court, the cross-examination of the witness Charles McNeil was continued by Mr. Field, as follows: In the bargain for the purchase of Marston's interest, witness acted on behalf of his wife in trying to get Marston to sell out to Mr. Opdyke for the price Mr. Opdyke offered; witness succeeded by giving his note for $2,000; the transfer was made to Mr. Farley for Mr. Opdyke's benefit; witness had no interest in the transfer any further than $2 per gun; understood nobody had any interest in it except Mr. Opdyke; witness did no business particularly in the concern after that time, and especially after the foreman was removed; witness was to have $2 a gun, less 30 cents, as Mr. Oydyke had invested $135,000; witness made this bargain with Mr. Farley; Mr. Opdyke afterward asked witness, and witness told him he had made such a bargain; Opdyke then said he had reprimanded Farley for making such a bargain, and asked witness to rescind it, and not consider it a bargain; witness said: "No, I could not do it, for everything had been done according to that agreement; the mortgage had been canceled before that; witness' wife had insured before that, and it was all in Mr. Opdyke's name, and I certainly should not do anything of the kind;" before this bargain was made, witness' wife's name was in the policy of insurance, and afterward it was removed; afterward he saw Mr. Opdyke at his own house and he denied Mr. Farley had ever told him he made such a contract; "why," said witness, "what did you reprimand Mr. Farley for?" he replied, "I never reprimanded Mr. Farley, I reprimanded you;" said the witness, "what for?" he repiled, "because you asked him to make such a bargain;" witness then called him the name he did, of course; witness did say Mr. Opdyke was a rascal; witness supposed counsel had read the testimony.

Counsel (Mr. Field) made some remarks, and the court remarked that counsel should not provoke the witness.

Witness did say Mr. Opdyke was a liar and a rascal; it was not for that he called Mr. Opdyke a swindler at Congress Hall, but because he did not give witness the money; Henderson has not paid over any money to witness, but has paid some to his wife, the next day, he believed, after he got it; the first interview witness ever had with any person on the subject of the Surveyorship was with Mr. Andrews at the corner of Twenty-third-street and Broadway; it was about two weeks before he got the appointment; did not think they met by appointment the first time; it was in the outer saloon; witness did not own the saloon; had no interest in it; did not borrow money to fit it up; this meeting was in the evening; did not recollect having met him up stairs in a committee-room; Mr. Andrews asked witness if he would use his influence with Mr. Opdyke to get him the appointment of Surveyor of the Port of New-York; witness said: "Mr. Opdyke is working for a man by the name of Stanton, and I do not know whether he will be willing to leave his friend and go for you;" Andrews said: "I think you can make it all agreeable with him, and I will do anything that he asks;" witness said: "What object will you make it to Mr. Opdyke if he does drop Stanton to go for you?" witness did not remember whether he or Andrews mentioned the ten thousand dollars first; Andrews said he would give Mr. Opdyke, or cause to be collected out of the Custom-house, ten thousand dollars, if Mr. Opdyke would drop Mr. Stanton and go for him, to get him the appointment for Surveyor; he said he would either collect it or cause it to be collected out of the custom-house; he said he would give it to Mr. Opdyke toward his election; witness said he would tell Mr. Opdyke; met Mr. Opdyke next day, at his store, and had a private interview; witness told Mr. Opdyke he had seen Mr. Andrews the night before and he wanted witness to see Mr. Opdyke to get him to drop his friend Stanton and go for him for the Surveyorship, and that Mr. Andrews would give him $10,000 toward his election next Fall, as it was understood he would run for Mayor. Mr. Opdyke said, "Wont he cheat me?" Witness replied, "No, I don't think he will; I think he will do all that is right, but if you want anybody else to help me, call in your man and let him go with me." He said he would choose Mr. Williamson to go with witness and see Mr. Andrews, and if the bargain could be made satisfactory he would go for Mr. Andrews; witness did not remember anything else that he (witness) said; witness saw Mr. Williamson at his office, No. 11 Spruce-st; Mr. Williamson and witness went up that night and saw Mr. Andrews at the corner of Twenty-third-street and Broadway; he was to meet Mr. Andrews there; that was the next night after the first interview; the three, Andrews, Williamson and witness sat at a table; witness said to Mr. Williamson that Mr. Andrews had promised him the night before, if Mr. Opdyke would leave his friend Stanton and go for him for Surveyor, he would collect, or cause to be collected, out of the custom-house, ten thousand dollars for Mr. Opdyke's election; Mr. Andrews said to Mr. Williamson, "that is correct; I will do it;" witness did not remember what Mr. Williamson said just then; witness next went to Mr. Opdyke's, and told him that Mr. Williamson had gone the night before and met Mr. Andrews, and that Mr. Andrews had agreed before Mr. Williamson the same as he did before witness, and that everything was all satisfactory; Mr. Opdyke said, "Where is Mr. Williamson? can I see him?" witness replied, "Yes, I suppose so;" witness went over and told Mr. Williamson Mr. Opdyke wanted to see him, and he started to go and see him (Oydyke;) witness saw Mr. Opdyke the next day, he believed; when witness saw him again, Mr. Opdyke said Mr. Williamson had been there and seen him, and it was all satisfactory; witness was not present at that interview between Mr. Williamson and Mr. Opdyke; spoke to Mr. Andrews next, after he came back from Washington; Mr. Andrews got his appointment, witness thought, within a week; thought Mr. Opdyke told him in his interview he would go to Washington that evening to carry out this arrangement; did not recollect going to Mr. Opdyke's house while he was absent; afterward met Mr. Andrews at Mr. Opdyke's house the morning after Mr. Andrews returned; witness and Andrews walked down town together; Andrews thanked witness very kindly for what he had done; there was one more that he wanted to thank, and that was Mr. Williamson; on the way down, Andrews said he wanted to do something for witness, and would give him appointments for two or three friends; they walked down to Mr. Williamson's office; Andrews had not previously promised him appointments for his friends, for he had not the office: certainly he could promise to give appointments before he got the office, as he is the best promising witness ever saw, and the poorest performer, thought Mr. Williamson was not in when they called at his office, and Andrews said he would find him; he and Andrews separated on the corner of Nassau and Frankfort streets; saw Mr. Opdyke a few days before his election coming from the custom-house; where he had been to get the money; asked Mr. Opdyke if had not got his money; Mr. Opdyke answered, "No," or that he had got a part; witness did all he could for Mr. Opdyke's nomination; no provision was made for the money in the event of Mr. Opdyke not being nominated; next saw Mr. Opdyke at his house after his election; witness said, in effect, "Did Mr. Andrews do what he agreed to?" "No," said Mr. Opdyke, "he did not;" "How much did he do?" witness thought he said, "Seven thousand dollars;" the money was none of it for witness, but all of it for Mr. Opdyke.

Question by Mr. Field—Did you do anything more than to ask Andrews to make the customary collection from the Government officials toward this election? A.—You may take it as you please; I asked him in the way I told you; whether it is customary or not I do not know.

Q.—Did you take up a paper and figure up the amount of salaries, and the amount that could be collected at two per cent. from each? A.—No, Sir, I never did; how many there were in the Custom-house I do not know.

Q.—Did you not know that Mr. Andrews and Mr. Opdyke were a good deal more confidential than you and Mr. Opdyke were? A.—I did not; I should think he was not very intimate, as Mr. Opdyke asked me when I told him, "Won't he cheat me?" [Laughter.] In the campaign of 1861 Andrews was not Mr. Opdyke's intimate friend; witness was boss at that time; witness and Andrews got the "People's party" to go for Mr. Opdyke; both exerted their influence.

The Court remarked that the witness was exhausted, and there had been a great deal of repetition and a great deal of time consumed.

Mr. Field said the cross-examination had not been as long as the direct.

The Court said it ought not generally to be half as long. He made the remark that there had been a great deal of prolixity, tedious to the jury and the court. It was due to the progress of the case that they should proceed as promptly as was consistent with doing justice.

Mr. Field—Knowing the desire of the court to see justice done, Sir, I can only say we shall proceed as rapidly as possible, and when I have gone too far, if you will tell me, I will abandon the case.

The Court—These remarks are not due to the court, nor should the counsel make them.

Mr. Field—I will conform to all the rules of the court.

The Court—I trust you will, and without this continual flinging at the court. I dislike it.

Mr. Field—There has not been any before, sir.

The Court—Yes.

Mr. Field—Well I was was not aware of it; I have entirely misunderstood if there has been, because it has been wholly unintentional and not in the least degree understood.

The interview at Washington occurred while Congress was in session; thought it was in February; Mr. Opdyke might have went with him, but he was not certain; witness went on another business—for Mr. Opdyke, however; witness was not conscious that he was doing anything wrong in what he did.

Ex-Judge Pierrepont submitted that questioning a witness on his views of morality was not proper.

The court, after hearing some argument, allowed the counsel to question the witness for the purpose of eliciting evidence affecting his credibility.

Witness did not think anything about the right or wrong of the matter; had held office under the City Government—about five years in the street department and about five years under the tax commissioners; never raised money from the employes to lobby for the tax commissioners; did not ask Mr Andrews to have the ten thousand dollars put into his own hands. After some more unimportant questions, the cross-examination closed.

Re-direct by Ex-Judge Pierrepont—Witness was shown a stipulation of the settlement of the McNeil-Opdyke suit, signed B. Hendrickson.

Never saw the paper before; never gave direction or order to have such a paper made; never heard of its being made until he came into court.

Witness was shown a paper giving power of attorney to Mr. Hendrickson.

Witness recollected signing a power of attorney, which Mr. Hendrickson said he would have to go into court; Mr. Hendrickson brought him the paper, which he signed; he was going into court on the morning of this suit of McNeil against Opdyke, and wanted this power of attorney to act in the case; did not think Mr. Hendrickson said anything about settling; did not give the witness any such idea to his knowledge; never gave any authority, verbally or otherwise, to enter into this settlement; did not know Hendrickson was going to settle it.

Ex-Judge Pierrepont was then about to question the witness about the business for Mr. Opdyke on which he went to Washington.

Witness went there for the purpose of selling army blankets for Mr. Opdyke.

Ex-Judge Emott objected to the evidence as forming an attempt at justification on a separate part of the libel.

After some discussion it was admitted.

Witness stated Mr. Opdyke asked him to sell some blankets for him, some 170,000 pairs, to the Government; witness went to Washington but did not succeed in selling them.

Bernardus Hendrickson sworn.—In the Fall of 1861 McNeil wished him to advance some money to go into a government contract which he had got; the contract was got by McNeil in witness' name.

Witness then reviewed the history of the contract essentially as was previously done. The power of attorney referred to was for the purpose of the McNeil-Opdyke suit; witness did not tell McNeil he wanted it to settle the suit; it was drawn up by Amor J. Williamson, at Mr. Opdyke's rooms in the Fifth-avenue Hotel; the conversation with Mr. Opdyke at that time they both considered confidential, and he told Mr. Opdyke as far as he was concerned, it was a matter that never should come into court.

Mr. Field—We will release him from that obligation. Next day he met Mr. Farley, Mr. Williamson and Mr. Opdyke at Mr. Opdyke's rooms, and talked the matter over in regard to the settlement of this suit; witness told Mr. Opdyke he held the interest assigned in this suit, and was anxious to bring it to a close; asked Mr. Opdyke what he proposed to give; Mr. Opdyke said he had always purposed to give what profits were made with the money McNeil had put in; as near as he (Opdyke) could calculate, there were two thousand dollars profit, and he was willing it should go to McNeil; he could not do any more than that; next day he saw him again, and Mr. Opdyke said Farley had reckoned up fifteen hundred dollars more, making some eleven thousand; they finally agreed to settle at this sum; witness did not tell McNeil he had done so; did not think he knew anything about it until afterward; witness signed the stipulation.

Counsel read the stipulation, stating that the suit should be settled "on the precise terms offered by the defendant before the suit had commenced."

The paper was written by Mr. Opdyke's son, in Mr. Field's office; it was then read, or appeared to be read, to witness, who signed it; witness thought he had said something to Mrs. McNeil that he was trying to settle this suit; the McNeils first knew he had settled it when he paid Mrs. McNeil the money that afternoon.

A long cross-examination by Mr. Field took place, but nothing important was elicited. It was all about the manner of signing this stipulation.

John W. Keene sworn.—Was engaged in the manufactory of arms, and has been for twenty-two years; went into this gun factory that was burned, in the middle of February, 1863; was in charge of the mechanical portion of it; knew all that was going on in the factory; knew what goods were in it, and all about it; after the fire occurred, there was preparation to make a claim against the city; Mr. Jones called upon witness in relation to making it; witness made up the claim as was presented to the city; in making up that claim, the basis of value of each gun was $24 70, which was the value of a gun made, finished and delivered; the whole account was not all made up on that basis.

The witness entered into a long exposition of the items of the bill as he made it up, which could hardly be transferred to paper with much intelligibility.

Q.—In point of fact did all the guns that were charged to the city, cost all that they are charged? A.—Yes, Sir, and more money.

Q.—If Mr. Farley had made up an account charging simply his outlay, would it have amounted to more than the account paid? A.—It would.

Q.—Of the carbines charged in this account there is no single arm upon which work had not been done in the factory. A.—No, Sir.

Q.—You stated that the average loss is only about 6 per cent., when you allowed 12½ per cent. was a variation to the disadvantage of Mr. Farley. A.—It so appears in the figures, certainly.

Q.—It increases the deduction from the contract price? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—In making up the account, did you not omit entirely interest upon capital? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—What rate of interest ought to be given to capital employed in the making of guns, considering its risks? A.—It ought to be considerably large.

Q.—A great deal more than seven per cent.? A.—Oh, yes, it ought to be double that invested in that business.

Q.—There is no mention made in this calculation of the royalty to the patentee? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—How much was that? A.—That I cannot state positively; I have understood it was $3 50.

Q.—Was there any other place in the country where these kind of guns were made? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Was there any other place where it could have been made six months after the fire? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Was there any other place, in your judgment, where it could have been made at all without making new works? A.—Not without adjusting tools and machinery; certainly not.

Q.—It requires the adjustment of machinery and tools to it? A.—Yes, Sir, as all guns do.

Q.—On the morning after the fire what could the machinery and tools which were thus adjusted have been replaced in the factory for, if it could have been done in an instant? A.—It couldn't have been done in an instant; in the first place it couldn't have been replaced there less than nine months at the least calculation; at the time it was destroyed, we should have had to pay 35 per cent. in advance of what the machinery was then worth, replacing it in the time of nine months, which, added to $97,929, would foot up the machinery and the tools alone at $130,000.

Q.—And then at the end of nine months it would not be as good as it was before. A.—It would not be so pliable.

Q.—Then it would have required $130,000, or fifteen months time to replace that establishment? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—As to the guns, could they have been duplicated anywhere? A.—I do not think they could at that time?

Q.—Are you well acquainted with Remington's establishment? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—What would Remington have made those guns for? A.—Twenty-two dollars; he wanted twelve months to make the first delivery of a thousand guns.

Q.—Are you now employed by Remington in his establishment? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—At the time of the fire you were turning out guns at the rate of about fifty per day? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—In your judgment is the fair value of a finished gun like that the contract price, less what it would cost to finish it. [Objection offered and sustained.]

Q.—How long had you been in this establishment? A.—About five months.

Q.—When you took hold of it, it was in a low condition? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Had you been working at a great disadvantage until about the time of the fire, and at a much higher rate of cost than afterward? A.—In some respects we had.

Q.—At the time of the fire, all was in perfect working order? A.—I so consider it.

Q.—Was the machinery in the building adapted to anything else than the making of that particular carbine? A.—Yes, the milling machine for instance. The small tools were not adapted to any other arm; but the machinery and general rule was adapted to a musket or a breech-loading gun.

Q.—About what proportion of the whole was adapted solely to this business? A.—About one-third.

Q.—In this statement of $16 48 you swear that the guns from that time forward could be made at that rate, and not that they had been made at that rate? A.—No Sir.

Q.—Were the tools made in the manufactory for this particular purpose? A.—Yes Sir.

Q.—How long did it take to make them? A.—That I could not answer, they had been running there over twelve months when I went there.

Q.—You could not tell how long they had been in operation? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—What did you do with the account when you had thus made it up? A.—I left it with Mr. Farley I believe.

Q.—Did you at any time go before the Supervisors with the account to explain about it. A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—This is the account that was finally settled? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—You have spoken of the waste of iron and steel, was that iron and steel in the shop? A.—Certainly.

Q.—How did you buy it? A.—In quantity in the market.

Q.—What kind did you use for the guns? A.—I bought the best material we could find in the market. We used the English gun iron and steel of different discriptions from different manufactories.

When the fire occurred had you any of that iron and steel on hand? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—How much had you on hand in the condition in which it was bought? A.—We had considerably more than is charged in that bill; I could not tell exactly what we had; independent to what we had worked up in parts, I think very likely there might have been two tons there. It might be more—all of that; we had a third more iron than we had steel; we bought it in larges quantities; we paid 13 cents a pound for iron and 28 cents for steel at that time.

Cross-examination by Mr. Field.—Q.—Were you before the Supervisors when this claim was under discussion? A.—I was.

Q.—Were you examined at great length? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—For how many different days? A.—I think I was there three different days.

Q.—Did Mr. Orison Blunt examine you? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Was he a gunmaker? A.—He told me he was.

Q.—He was one of the Supervisors? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Did you explain to him exactly how this account was made up? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you tell him this was the contract price to the Government. A.—I did.

Q.—That you took that and deducted what it would cost to finish? A.—I did.

Q.—How many of the Supervisors were present when this examination was going on? A.—Two or three in the room; there were some other cases on at the time ours was; I think part of the time there were two or more present.

Q.—Did Mr. Blunt cross-examine you very closely? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Is there anything in this account, either as it appears in this paper, or as you have detailed it to the jury, that was not explained to him? I think not anything.

Q.—What directions did you receive from Mr. Opdyke about making up the account or claim against the city? A.—None whatever.

Q.—The services of this committee were public in the City Hall? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Had the committee counsel? A.—I believe they had.

Q.—And secretary? A.—I believe so.

Q.—No counsel represented Mr. Opdyke on this occasion? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—He was not himself there? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you make up the account according to what you supposed was just? A.—I did; if I had not, I should not have done it.

Q.—Have you any doubt about its justice now? A.—No, Sir; I would swear to it until I was blind.

Q.—Were all the materials charged in this account actually there? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Were the prices charged there true? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Are all the computations true? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q. What has been your experience? A.—I have worked some 22 years at the business in different parts of the country; I have been employed in all the different armories, previous to the rebellion, in the States; I have worked in Springfield, Harper's Ferry, Chicopee Falls, &c.

Q.—Do you recollect anything being said by Mr. Opdyke about the cost to be charged to the city for the machinery? A.—Yes, Sir; I recollect my telling him I should add 25 or 30 per cent. to the cost of the machinery; I believe it was more than worth it.

Q.—Have you any doubt whatever that the machinery and tools were worth 30 per cent. on the market value, over and above what was charged? A.—Thirty-five; it is my solid conviction that at that time they could not have been purchased for less than 35 per cent. above the cost.

Q.—Does not machinery improve for the first few months? A.—New machinery is not near so good when first purchased as after it is run three to six months.

Q.—This machinery was all in perfect condition? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—When you told Mr. Opdyke you thought he ought to add the increased value of this stock, what did he tell you? A.—He told me he would not allow it.

Q.—Did he give you any reason for not allowing it? A.—No, Sir; I did not ask any.

Q.—Who helped you make up this account? A.—Mr. Pasett, the book-keeper.

Q.—Were all the books of the concern burned in the fire? A.—All except the cash-book.

Q.—Did you attend the auction sale of the damaged articles? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—When the factory was going on, was Mr. Opdyke much there? I believe he was occasionally—once or twice a week.

Q.—Did he have any acquaintance with the details of the business? A.—I think not.

Q.—Did he know the material on hand, or the state of manufacture in which it was? A.—I think not.

Q.—Did Mr. Opdyke give you any other direction about making up this account except that you must not charge an increased price in the machinery and tools? A.—He charged me to be very careful and get it correct.

Q.—Did he say to you, from the fact that he was Mayor that he would not allow any claim to go to the city that was questionable? A.—It strikes me he did.

Re-direct by Mr. Evarts.—Q.—What do you mean by saying the factory was in a low condition when you went there? A.—I mean that it had not been conducted as it ought to have been.

Q.—But was it in a losing condition? A.—I don't know about the losses of the concern; that I cannot say anything about, but this I will say, that it had been long enough in operation to produce more than that.

Q.—Its failure to produce would be necessarily a loss to its owners? A.—Naturally; it would be an expense, certainly.

Q.—Do you not consider saying it was in a low condition equivalent to saying it was a losing concern, more than any other establishment of the kind? A.—All establishments, particularly in gun business, are conducted in about the same manner; I think that establishment had been conducted as well as any other of the sort?

Q.—How do you know about the management of that concern? A.—I don't know, only for the length of time it had been going on.

Q.—Well, what did you mean by saying in a low condition? A.—I don't know exactly what you mean, except when I told you I thought it should have produced more than it had.

Q.—You say it was in perfect working order about the time of the fire? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long had it been in perfect working order before that? A.—Some three or four months, I suppose.

Q.—You say that in this statement of the arms as you made it up, and as it was presented and paid for by the city, there was no account of the royalty on these incomplete arms? A.—I did not take that into consideration; I knew nothing about it.

Q.—What do you take into consideration in stating for the value of the market as $24 70 a gun? A.—Labor and material and the necessary expenses to complete them.

Q.—What, is labor and material to make the market price? A.—No.

Q.—I ask you as to all you did take into account in fixing $24 70, which you took as a basis for your calculation, how did you arrive at the $24 70? A.—That was the contract price the Government was to pay.

Q.—Didn't that include the royalty the parties had to pay patentees? A.—I suppose it did. I thought you asked me, if in making the claim I calculated the royalty.

Q.—You were asked if the royalty appeared in the claim against the State.

Mr. Field—No, you asked him if the royalty appeared in the estimate of $16 48 a gun.

Q.—You have said that $16 48 was the cost of making guns there—material and labor as it was then going—how long had that been the cost? A.—We had not built the guns for that, they really cost more.

Q.—How long had $16 48 been the cost of manufacturing these guns as you stated?

By the Court—How many days had you been bringing out fifty guns a day from that establishment? A.—Only for a short time before the fire.

By the Court—That cost was based on the manufacture of fifty a day? A.—Yes, Sir.

By Mr. Evarts.—Q.—How long had $16 48 represented the cost? A.—Probably we had been in a condition to run at that rate for six weeks or two months.

Q.—How long had the concern been in a condition to turn out guns at all? A.—About that length of time.

Q.—What would it have cost to cast a gun in that factory before it was in a condition to make any? A.—It would be hard to estimate.

Q.—During the whole six weeks or two months you were working the concern making guns, $16 48 was the cost of manufacture? A.—That was the figure on which the claim was based.

Q.—What do you mean by saying that these guns that you have put down at this price, and varying from $22 to $31, cost more than the sum you have stated? A.—Because I believe they would cost more.

Q.—Explain what you mean? A.—I mean that in starting a new armory of any kind, in constructing machinery, in getting suitable tools ready, in taking in crude men and getting them systematized and adapted to their different branches of the work, all this takes time and money, and I believe these arms, as charged there, would cost a good deal more.

Q.—You mean, then, that starting a factory, getting it to the point of production at the rate of fifty guns a day, making these arms, taking in the whole establishment and working it on without profit up to that point of capability, would increase the cost beyond the sum charged here? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—That is the idea? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—You stated that you were before the Committee of Supervisors. Who requested you to go? A.—I was requested by Mr. Farley to attend.

Q.—You stated that you thought this mode of making up the account was right, or that you would not have made it? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—And you swear now it is right? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you get the idea of making it out that way? A.—It was suggested to me by Loren Jones.

Q.—Did you ever attempt to make up an account of the crude materials burned up—bar iron, steel, barrels, rough stocks and other portions of the purchased material? A.—I believe I figured out something of that kind in pencil.

Q.—Was that figuring ever presented? A.—No; I don't believe anybody ever saw it, except, probably, Mr. Jones.

Q.—You say that you gave an account to that committee. Answer all questions put to you. Have you looked at that pamphlet of your testimony since that time? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Turn to the sixteenth page of that pamphlet, the second paragraph beginning, "The Inspector that inspected the arms." That was the first parcel that was completed, was it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—The next is 500 carbines, all finished in parts and ready to assemble; on such work the men were all paid for the various parts at $22 70 a gun; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the way you stated that item? A.—I believe that is the next.

Q. The next item is 1,000 guns, also machinery, filed and stocked, at $21 30 per gun. You say, "I arrived at the price at what the article cost, counting waste, power and expenses." Is that right? A.—Yes.

Q. And so with the other item through the paragraph to the end. Is that the form in which you stated these facts to the committee as to the manner in which this sum had been made up? A. Yes, that is the form I stated it in.

Q. You stated that Jones first suggested to you the idea of making out the account in this way. Now, while making it up, had you any conference, or received any suggestions from anybody, Jones included? A.—From nobody, I believe, excepting the suggestion of Jones.

Q.—How about Farley? A.—Farley was sometimes present but he didn't claim to understand anything about it.

Q.—Where was the work commenced and who was present? A.—It was finished in a building at the back of Exchange-place, it used to be Mr. Hughes' office.

Q.—Did it take a great while to make it up in this way. A.—I think two or three weeks.

Q.—And during that time Farley was present? A.—Probably I saw him once a day and then once in two or three days.

Q.—You told him what was going on? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long was Jones with you? A.—I cannot say he was present at all, but I used to see him outside on occasions.

Q.—When you had the work completed, to whom did you show it or deliver it? A.—To Farley.

Q.—Is this a copy of the paper as you delivered it to him? A.—Yes, that is a copy in a condensed form.

Q.—Now as to the first foreman; what do you know about him? A.—I don't know anything about him.

Q.—His name was Knowlton? A.—Yes.

Q.—What evil or injury was in the establishment when you went there? A.—The work was not going on in as good condition as it might be; I believe for the number of men engaged they were not doing as much work as might be done.

Q.—This was the loss of the establishment? A.—No doubt about that; it was at the expense of somebody.

Q.—When you went there first who employed you; who did you see about employment? A.—Farley first and then Mr. Opdyke.

Q.—What instructions, if any, did you receive from Mr. Opdyke? A.—Not any at all.

Q.—Did he say anything to you about the condition of things at the factory? A.—He told me things were unsatisfactory; I believe I asked him about the guns; what they were; he said the same things they were talking about, or something to that effect.

Q.—Did he say anything about the loss he would be willing to sell out at? A.—He never did to me.

Q.—When you were before this Committee of Claims did anybody but Mr. Blunt examine you? A.—No.

Q.—Any person else present at the examination of you by Mr. Blunt? A.—Yes; I cannot name the parties, but there were two or three around at the time.

Q.—Now as to the machinery and tools that entered into this claim; did you have anything to do with making up the estimate? A.—No.

Q.—You had something to say to Mr. Opdyke as to the valuation made by somebody that it was not as high as it should be? A.—That was as to the machinery as it was before.

Q.—Now, did you say anything to him about the rate at which you would put these guns in the portion of the schedule that you would make up? A.—No, not particularly. Q.—I don't know but something might have been said when he came to the office?

Q.—What was that? A.—I can say one thing about that—that he charged me to be correct.

Q.—Did you show him the principle upon which you were doing it? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—In the same manner as you show it to me? A.—Just so.

Q.—And he desired you get it correct. A.—That was his idea.

Recross Examined.—By Mr. Field. In the taking of your testimony was not a great deal that was said omitted? A.—I think so.

Q.—Is not this the way it was taken? [Mr. Evarts objected.

The Court—It is competent to ascertain whether any of his testimony was left out.

Mr. Emott—They cannot put the general question as to whether that document contains all the questions and answers; there is no question of verity; nothing which binds any one. These are a committee who employed somebody to make records of their proceedings, and the original of that record is here.

Mr Evarts—Yes, and they are the basis of the action of that committee.

The Court—I have no doubt that it is competent to ask that question.]

By Mr. Field—Is all that was said taken down as it appears there? A.—All that was of any consideration was, I think; there may be some little things omitted.

Q.—Was not this the mode of conducting the examination; you and Blunt discussed the question first, and then Blunt would tell the clerk to write down so and so? A.—That was the mode of getting at the result; we talked it over as two men would who were familiar with the matter, as Mr. Blunt and I were; then something would be written down.

Q.—Was it your language or the language dictated by Blunt to the secretary?

Mr. Evarts objected.

The Court—You are asked whether the testimony was taken down as you gave it, or as Blunt dictated it? A.—I think the most of it was taken down as I gave it; I recollect a good deal of it here.

Q.—Was there not a good deal said between you and Blunt that is not there? A.—No doubt; it seems to me that we talked a great deal more than would fill up the whole book.

Q.—Did you not answer his various questions for whole minutes at a time, and nothing of it would be written? A.—No doubt.

Q.—You are asked what Jones did in making up the account; did not Jones tell you the claim would be made larger? A.—I believe he said that he did not think it was large enough.

Q.—Was there not a very considerable quantity of material destroyed not put in the account against the city? A.—I think there was.

Q.—To what amount was material not charged altogether? A.—I think there was a lot of stock material not charged.

By the Court—About how much? A.—Probably enough to complete four or five hundred guns not charged against the city, and all destroyed.

Re-direct—There was nothing important elicited on the further re-direct examination.

By Mr. Emott—There were parts rejected.

Q.—Parts to make 200 guns? A.—Yes.

Q.—In what condition were they? A.—Nearly finished—naturally so, or they could not have been rejected.

Q.—Rejected for defects in the forging? A.—Government did not carry on an inspection beyond the barrels.

Q.—You said something about the machinery and tools being worth 30 per cent. more than they went into the concern at; did you mean that they were worth that more in this establishment, or worth it as a matter of sale in the market? A.—The question asked before, was whether they could be replaced for that sum, and I said it would cost 37 per cent. more than cost.

Q.—Did you say it was worth that much more to replace it in that establishment, or that it would sell in the market at that advance if the establishment was disbanded? A.—I meant to say that amount, owing to the high price of stock and labor at that time, over and above that which ruled when the machinery was purchased, it would have cost 35 per cent. more to replace it.

Q.—You said that the machinery could only be used for that particular manufacture without a change? A.—I said some portion of it.

By Mr. Evarts.—You said you were employed by Mr. Remington—in what capacity? A.—Superintending the mechanical portion of the work. Q.—Did you pay the men? A.—Yes. I draw the money and pay the men employed under me.

THE WORLD NEWSPAPER.

Mr. Emott handed to the court a copy of the World newspaper of the 16th, and called attention to an article therein which he said was intended to influence the jury.

The court cautioned the jury against reading any comments on the trial that might appear in print, and even against conversing with any one on the subject.

The court then adjourned to Monday next at 10 A. M.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Launch of the Screw Corvette Wampanoag —Our Swift Screw Cruisers.

The screw corvette Wampanoag was successfully launched from the Brooklyn Navy-yard Thursday morning. At precisely 11¼ o'clock, everything being in readiness, she moved from her ways in the presence of hundreds of spectators, among whom were a large number of ladies. She entered her destined element in the most graceful and brilliant style, amid cheers and waving of handkerchiefs. Miss CASS, daughter of Commander CASS, stood at her bow, and christened her as she went off. She glided through the water about two hundred yards, when she was towed back by tug-boats on hand for the purpose.

This vessel is the fourth of the new series of swift screw sloops which have been launched within the past few months. These vessels have been constructed to fill a void in our navy list, which will place us on a more even footing with foreign Powers. Of the vessels on which some sacrifice of armament has been made to obtain speed, there are seven building; two of these vessels are being built by contract, and five in the navy-yards. This class of vessels is represented by the Ammonoosuc and Chattanooga. There are also in progress of construction twenty vessels with steam machinery of rather less power, but which are to be much more heavily armed. Ten of these, of the class of the Illinois, the Guerriere and the Java, have covered gun-decks, and will carry twenty heavy guns. Two will have a plating of thin iron as a protection from shells. The remaining ten, of the class of the Canonicook and Manitou, building in the navy-yards, are of less size, but with equal machinery and intended for greater speed. As all of them will be provided with masts and sails, they can be cruising vessels and used on foreign stations.

The Wampanoag has been built under the superintendence of Mr. B. F. DELANO, Naval Constructor, and his able assistant, Mr. DAVIDSON, and is a beautiful vessel in every respect. She is a perfect picture, and speaks volumes for the skill, taste and ability of her constructor. Her principal dimensions are as follows: extreme length, 355 feet; beam, 45 feet; depth, 23 feet 6 inches. She is to be ship-rigged and is pierced for 20 heavy guns. Her machinery is building at the Novelty Iron Works. She has two 100-inch cylinder with 48 inches stroke of piston. The engines are geared to the propeller-shaft, so that at a moderate number of revolutions of the engines the screw will be driven from sixty to ninety revolutions per minute.

The following is a list of the new sloops-of-war now in course of construction:

Of the same three classes, the first has a monthly pay-roll of $9,190 in war and $6,721 in peace, and consuming 63 tons of coal daily; the second class has a monthly pay-roll of $8,414 in war and $5,187 in peace, and using 50 tons of coal per day; the third class has a monthly pay-roll of $6,556 in war and $4,779 in peace, and using 50 tons of coal per day.

FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.—The anniversary of this institution was to have been observed on Thursday evening at the Academy of Music, but owing to the inclemency of the weather, the number in attendance was small; and in consequence, Mr. RUSSELL, the President, announced that the celebration would be postponed, except as to the exercises of the children, which were given in full, and executed very creditably. Bishop COXE, after a few remarks to the audience, addressed the children, about two hundred in number, after which the proceedings closed.

Terrible Accident on the Grand Trunk Railway.

A terrible accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway last night, caused by a collision with a westward-bound passenger train with a freight train, near this city. NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The Secretary of War furnishes this morning a volume of official dispatches, all of them of the most gratifying character. Success is reported in every quarter of the military field, and much of the information coming through rebel sources, the news may be set down as undoubtedly true.

The news from Gen. SHERMAN continues highly encouraging. From Richmond papers of yesterday we learn that on Wednesday, 14th, Gen. SHERMAN carried Fort McAllister by storm, and thus completely opened up his communications with the sea coast via the Ogeechee River, by which he can now receive supplies and reinforcements, if necessary for further operations. His army is thus planted directly in the rear of Savannah, and that city must fall, no matter what may be its defences. We have a report brought by the steamer Varuna, from Charleston Harbor, to annapolis, yesterday, to the effect that Savannah had already been captured, with 1,100 prisoners, after eight hours' fighting, but this is not confirmed from any other source. Richmond papers report the capture of Fort McAllister on Wednesday, and if Savannah had then been taken, as it must have been in order for the news to reach Charleston so soon, it would also have been known in Richmond.

The fighting before Nashville was renewed yesterday, and is reported to have been very desperate in its character, but resulted in our forces being everywhere successful. A dispatch from Nashville, dated at 2:15 P. M., says HOOD was making desperate efforts to get away, but THOMAS was pressing him with vigor and rapidly capturing men and guns. The prospect was fair for the annihilation of HOOD'S army. His retreat by the route by which he advanced had already been cut off. Richmond papers of yesterday publish HOOD'S official report of the battle of Franklin, in which he claims a victory, but admits a fearful loss in valuable officers—no less than eleven Generals being placed hors-de-combat—six killed and five wounded.

The first news of an important raid in Southwestern Virginia, by our cavalry, under BURBRIDGE and STONEMAN, comes to us through Richmond papers of yesterday, extracts from which are telegraphed by the Secretary of War. Our forces had captured Bristol, Va., on the 13th, and moved upon Abington at once, taking that place without opposition, and then moving rapidly up the East Tennessee Railroad, had reached Marion on the 15th, and would undoubtedly capture the important salt works at Saltville, and do great damage to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad.

The expedition sent from Roanoke Island to Fitch Landing on the Roanoke River on the 3d inst., destroyed nearly a million dollars' worth of rebel commissary supplies, and much other valuable property. News has been received at Newbern from the Union expedition now moving up the Roanoke River. The gunboat Otsego and the picket-boat Basiy, had been blown up and destroyed by torpedoes.

A report from Newbern of Dec. 13 shows that a Union force was moving up the Neuse River. The report was that they had captured Kinston and the railroad bridge, and were still moving into the interior.

A dispatch from Montreal states that there is a perfect panic in Canada amongst railway managers, in anticipation of non-intercourse with the United States, unless the Canadian Government takes measures to allay the excitement on the border. The released raiders had not been rearrested, nor had the stolen money been returned. Parliament had been summoned to meet on the 19th of January. Magistrates have been appointed on the frontier to take cognizance of breaches of international law. They will be aided by a strong police force.

We print this morning another list of death of our Union captives in Southern prisons. This list will probably carry to many hearts the first news of the fate of these martyrs. We have still a large number of names of others, which we will print as soon as our space will permit.

By the Morning Star, which arrived yesterday afternoon, we have news from New-Orleans to Dec. 10. Gen. DAVIDSON'S great raid from New Orleans was meeting with entire success. Mobile papers of the 4th inst. express the opinion that he was marching on that city. He has a force of 5,000 cavalry. The expedition reached Tangipaho on the 30th ult. Lieut. EARL'S men have captured Gen. KIRBY SMITH'S Adjutant-General. Gen. CANBY'S wound is gradually healing, and he is now able to attend to all the important business of his office.

The New-Orleans Picayune, of Dec. 10, says: "In the Matamoras Monitor de la Frontera, of the 19th, we find the following: This celebrated officer of the Confederate States Navy, and of the Alabama, which was destroyed in a desperate and heroic combat with the United States steamship Kearsarge, has visited us for a short time in company of Col. FORD. He is about to start from Brownsville for Richmond, accompanied by twenty mounted men; 'amigos snyos,' the writer says, which we take to mean that they were either picked men, or men who had volunteered to see him through. Perhaps some of these may have been his own officers."

GENERAL NEWS.

The subscriptions to the 10-40 years 5 ℔ cent. Gold bearing Stock of the U. S. were $750,000 yesterday, in addition to the usual daily subscriptions to the 7-30 ℔ cent. Loan. The Stock Exchange was firm on Government Stocks, but lower on the Railways. The Gold Room 233¼@ 234⅞ ℔ cent.

There is trouble in Clearfield County, Penn. On Monday afternoon last three companies of the Sixteenth Regiment, Veteran Reserve Corps, had quite a fight with a number of deserters and disaffected citizens, and captured nineteen of them. ADAMS, the leader of the gang, was killed, and so was Private COPPI, Co. C, of the Veterans.

The Detroit Advertiser, of Dec. 13, learns from an extract of a letter received by C. N. RIOPELLE, Esq., of that city, of the death of Maj.-Gen. SHERMAN'S child, which occurred on the 7th inst., at South Bend, Ind. Its remains were interred in the cemetery of the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, and the last ceremonies were performed by the Right Rev. Bishops ROSECRANS and LEWIS. The remains of the child were followed to its last resting-place by a large concourse of people, among whom were included the students of the University.

A boy, 10 years of age, was yesterday arraigned before Justice DODGE, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, charged with the third offence of horse stealing. His name is Thomas Keenan alias John D. Winn, and he resides in Gansevoort-street. When asked what his occupation was, he said "nothing." The last horse he stole was valued at $150, and was owned by Mr. GEO. G. PALMER, corner of Waverley-place and Charles-street.

Col HARTWELL, of the Fifty-fifth Massachusetts Regiment Volunteers (colored,) and wounded at the battle of Honeywell, came passenger in the steamer Arago.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday concurred with the Councilmen in adopting the ordinance to regulate the Fire Department. The Board of Councilmen adopted a resolution appropriating $20,000 to pay Mr. ROBINSON, Superintendent of the Fire Telegraph, for the use of his patent heretofore, and to purchase it for the city; they also concurred in the resolution to procure a portrait of Ex-Mayor OPDYKE, to be placed in the Governor's room. Both boards adjourned to 12 M. to-day.

Flour and Wheat were in limited request yesterday, at declining prices. Corn was more active and firmer. Provisions opened briskly, especially year-old Mess Pork, which advanced $1 87½, but fell off again $1 37½ ℔ bbl. The demand was mainly speculative. Whisky was in lively request, also on speculation, and was much dearer. General Merchandise was moderately inquired for. Freights were quiet. Other branches of trade presented no remarkably new feature.

A private dispatch received in this city yesterday, from a reliable gentleman in Montreal, states that it was reported that the money belonging to the St. Alban's Bank was to be restored yesterday; that there is a great reaction there in rebel stock since Wednesday, and that even the Tories feel disgusted with the proceedings of the court presided over by Judge COURSOL.

Bermuda papers of the 6th inst. are received. Blockade-running steamers Stag and Talisman had sailed, prior to the 6th, for a Southern port. No news.

Capt. DEGROOT'S new steamship Enchantress made her trial-trip yesterday from this city to Tarrytown and return, attaining the high rate of speed of eighteen and a half miles in an hour. Several scientific gentlemen were on board, all of whom expressed themselves entirely satisfied with the working of the vessel.

The Winter Campaign—The Gigantic Movements by Land and by Sea.

Though we are now far advanced into Winter, and the snows and frosts are on the earth and in the heavens, still all our forces and fleets are engaged in active campaigning, from the James River to the Mississippi, from the Cumberland to the seaboard. Gen. THOMAS, with one of our three great armies, is demolishing HOOD'S army before Nashville; Gen. SHERMAN is thundering at the defences of Savannah, and has just captured Fort McAllister; and GRANT is busy with LEE, and has just, through WARREN, brought to completion an extensive expedition. As regards our lesser military bodies, we read of brisk movements on the seaboard of North Carolina: Gen. FOSTER is distracting the rebels on the coast of the other Carolina, and aiding SHERMAN; while the vast sweep and gigantic scale of our military operations is seen in the fact that we have this morning an official dispatch from Gen. CANBY, at New-Orleans, mentioning that he had sent out two expeditions, coöperative with Gen. SHERMAN, from Vicksburgh and Baton Rouge—these points being over six hundred miles distant from the point at which FOSTER'S small column is also coöperating. Beside all these movements, the official bulletin quotes from Thursday's Richmond papers an account of a very elegant operation undertaken by our troops in East Tennessee, in the rear of BRECKINRIDGE, in which movement, it seems, we have cut through Tennessee into Southwestern Virginia, and have penetrated beyond Abingdon, which the rebels "presume" has fallen into our hands. Another land expedition has moved out from Newbern up the Neuse River, and at last accounts had reached Kinston, half-way to Goldsborough, at which point it would no doubt strike the Wilmington Railroad.

This much for the movements of our land forces.

But our fleets, by sea and by river, are not less active. We gave in our columns yesterday some account of one of the greatest naval expeditions of the whole war, which left Hampton Roads at the beginning of this week, and which, it is generally supposed, is striking for some point on the rebel coast between Norfolk and Galveston. Admiral DAHLGREN, with the South Atlantic Squadron, is busy aiding SHERMAN. We read also today of a naval expedition up the Roanoke River in North Carolina; and on the Cumberland River Admiral LEE is rendering efficient aid to the army of Gen. THOMAS.

All these great land and naval movements, in which soldiers and sailors by the hundred thousand are engaged, are going on bravely and successfully in this month of December—a month in which, only a short time since, it was thought by some people all our troops would be in Winter quarters.

But SHERMAN, among other of our Generals, has shown that campaigning can be carried on in the South all the year round. It was last Spring, in May, that he began his great campaign at Chattanooga, on the northernmost verge of Georgia; and from the beginning to the close of May, from the beginning of June to the close of August, from the beginning of September till now, near the close of the year, he has been fighting and marching, capturing and conquering, without a week's cessation. What does not the country owe to such a glorious army of veterans as that which is now doing battle in its service, and establishing its power and renown for all time?

—From the army of SHERMAN and from the army of THOMAS, the news to-day is news of triumph.

The great battle of THOMAS with HOOD, which began on Thursday, was renewed yesterday, and, as the result of the severe fighting, our army was everywhere successful. HOOD was trying to get his army away; but THOMAS was capturing his guns and men, and the prospect was excellent of bringing to a final point the rebel campaign in Tennessee.

Of SHERMAN'S army, which reached the rear of Savannah on Friday, we read that it has captured the great rebel work called Fort McAllister, on Wednesday of this week. This immense earthwork was one of the main defences of the city, though lying fifteen miles south of it; and its capture opens up SHERMAN'S communication with DAHLGREN'S fleet, through Ossabaw Sound. This Fort McAllister is an old and tough acquaintance of ours. Two years ago, or in January, 1863, it was attacked and bombarded for six hours, by the monitor Montauk, commanded by the gallant WORDEN; and in March of the same year, a grand attack was made upon it by four monitors, in charge of the gallant DRAYTON, now commander of Admiral FARRAGUT'S flagship; but these attacks, though they taught us and the rest of the world many valuable lessons as regards earthen works and iron ships, had no effect whatever upon the rebel fortification. It remained in its glory for two years, until SHERMAN came along, on Wednesday last, and carried it by storm in the rear. We wait for the rebels to tell us what SHERMAN did next.

Thus the mighty labor of retaking the national forts and property and suppressing the great rebellion, is steadily prosecuted by our armies and navies; and if by the close of the year HOOD is well defeated and dislodged from Tennessee, and Savannah and Wilmington are in our possession, we shall have much less work to do at the beginning of next year than we had at the opening of this.

The Emancipation Proclamation.

We find the following paragraph in the Anti-Slavery Standard:

"We know that the TIMES of this city, under pretence of magnifying the Message and the President, affirms anew the Dana-Seward Doctrine that the Proclamation, being a war measure, will end with the war, and that the rebels, by submitting in season, may save what slaves have not been actually set free by the operation of the war. We are sure that this gloss belies as well as dishonors Mr. LINCOLN. There is no sentence or word in his Message, or in any utterance of his since he made the Proclamation, on which such an inference can be hung."

The Standard mistakes, or at least misstates, our position on this subject. We have never said that "the Proclamation will end with the war," except so far as it is a war measure. That is the precise language we used in the very article from which the Standard professes to quote. Whether it is or is not to have validity after the war ends, as affecting civil rights and State usages, is a question which the courts must decide. This is our position, and we believe it to be that of the President, of Mr. SEWARD, and of everybody else who has any definite opinion on the subject.

That the Proclamation was issued as a war measure, for war purposes, and in the exercise of the war power, the President expressly declares, and nobody, so far as we know, pretends to doubt. If there had been no war, the President would have had no right to proclaim emancipation. So long, and so long only, as he is acting in his capacity of Commander-in-Chief of the army, and is prosecuting war against rebels in arms, he will have the right to maintain and enforce that Proclamation as a war measure. When the war ceases, as it will when the rebels cease fighting, war measures will cease, and this among them.

Another question will have arisen meantime, growing out of that Proclamation. By its terms all the slaves in States now in rebellion have been set free. So far as that declaration shall have been carried into actual effect, when the war ceases its results will be beyond controversy, just like any other results of actual hostilities. But where it may not have taken actual effect,—upon slaves who may not have been actually made free, as well as proclaimed free,—when the war ends, its validity will be open to precisely the same question as that of any other act of the Government. The Executive Department is pledged to maintain it; but Congress may deprive the Executive of the power to redeem this pledge, and the Judiciary may annul the act altogether. When the war ends, the war power falls into abeyance again, and all questions to which the war may have given rise, all questions growing out of Emancipation, Confiscation, Blockade, or other acts of the Government, are to be settled within the Union, under the Constitution and in the ordinary course of its provisions. Upon this point we presume the Standard agrees with us; and we do not see, therefore, how it can differ from us in thinking that after it ceases to have effect as a war measure, (which will be of course when the war ends,) the further potency of the Proclamation will be subject wholly to the judicial action of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Practically we hope the question will be one of little consequence. We trust that Congress and the people of the States will concur in so amending the Constitution as to abolish and prohibit the existence of slavery. No one doubts the rightful power of the people thus to act, and such action would at once dispose of all questions connected with slavery by disposing forever of slavery itself.

THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.—The Mercantile Library Association, whose local habitation, as most of our city readers are aware, is Clinton Hall, makes another appeal to the intelligence of the commercial community, which should meet a prompt response. The facts, as we discover from a circular issued by the directory, are these: There is an outstanding mortgage on Clinton Hall of $60,000. To meet the interest on this, a large sum is annually swallowed up, which it is desirable should be appropriated to the enlargement of the intellectual treasures of the Association. The library, which is open, at the smallest conceivable charge, to business people, from the humblest salaried clerk up to the leading merchant, is one of the most valuable in the city, alike for general reading and for special reference. It has conferred no common benefits on the sober and thoughtful class of our young men, whether of the commercial or professional class. And it is not creditable to the wealth and enterprise of New-York that the Mercantile Library should be indebted for one penny to-day. Along with the many scores which the closing year will wipe out, let this Clinton Hall debt be among the foremost. It is but a bagatelle for the class of citizens to which the institution owes its foundation.

The Municipal Taxes—How They Are Squandered.

The donation of five thousand dollars which the Aldermen and Common Council have just made to the College of St. Francis Xavier, accompanied by smaller gifts to certain charitable institutions, suggests one point more for the consideration of those who are about to make an effort this Winter to limit these bodies in their powers of mischief. It is agreed on all hands that they are unfit to deal even with the funds which they are authorized to vote for the maintenance of the city government, and are still more unfit to be made the almoners of the public charity, even in cases in which charity is a public duty.

But this donation they have just made to the College of St. Francis Xavier, is open to another graver objection. This institution is, we believe, an excellent one; but it is a sectarian one. One of its great objects is the maintenance and extension of one particular form of religious faith. And this is conclusive reason why the public at large should not be compelled to contribute to its support; and they are so compelled when the Common Council sets apart a portion of the city taxes for this purpose. The Municipal Government has no more right to do this, than to endow a church belonging to a particular sect; and if it might endow one, it might endow fifty, and give us a regular religious establishment on Manhattan Island. There is no objection that can be made to a church establishment, that may not be made to the contributions out of the public treasury for the support of Sectarian Schools; and in the whole catalogue of political abuses, there is not one to which the American public is more radically opposed than to this one. We do not care what the denomination may be, we need hardly say, to which this sort of aid is given. It would be as highly scandalous and improper, of course, to extend it to Presbyterian and Episcopalian Schools as to Catholic ones, and we should oppose it with even greater vehemence. We should oppose it, though we knew that in offering it the Common Council was animated by the purest and most philanthropic motives, instead of being simply desirous of making political capital with the more ignorant portion of non-taxpayers.

And apart from the question of expediency we need hardly say that the municipal finances are by no means in a condition to render generosity of this sort appropriate, or even honest. At present the municipality is burdened with liabilities which are already pressing with terrible severity on the poor, which already make it all but impossible for persons of moderate means to live with comfort or even decency on the island, and which is rapidly raising the price of everything sold within the city limits. There is no money to spare for any charity whatever, except those that are established for the relief of positive suffering, no matter to what creed or order or color the sufferers may belong. The Common Council are not fit to teach religion or to decide what religious opinions ought to be taught. So we trust all power of making donations will be taken away from them.

THE LATEST AMERICAN NEWS FROM ABROAD.—We are entertained by reading in the French organ, La France, that our late Presidential election, having been illegally conducted, is not binding—that if it cannot be annulled, it can at least be resisted, and that the Western States are actively organizing for a formidable resistance to it. We will not, of course, dispute the accuracy of the information given by the Paris Imperialist journal; in fact, we give it this prominence only to show our appreciation of its intelligence in American affairs.

La Patrie, we remark, is but little less accurate, and even more profound. It observes with striking statistical exactitude, that Monsieur LINCOLN did not receive the votes of one-half of all the thirty-six States of the Union, and adds, with gravity, that it therefore becomes a question whether the European Governments can logically recognize him as President for the next four years. This is undoubtedly a serious matter for the consideration of European Governments, which are nothing if not logical; and we trust that the free and enlightened citizens of our own country will not treat with undue levity either the statistics or the logic of La Patrie.

NAVIGATION—WINTER CHANGES.—It is important to travelers to know that the New-Haven Steamboat Company will withdraw their 11 o'clock night boats, on and after Monday next, until further notice. The company's arrangements need no commendation either as to the local or general directory. The night line will be in running order again with the earliest opening of the coming season.

—Mr. BRADBURN, of No. 49 Walker-street, has brought out a curious and highly entertaining toy, "The Magic Wheel." It is founded on a well-known principle in optical delusions, which, while it amuses young heads, may puzzle older ones to explain.

Admiral Farragut.

An adjourned meeting of prominent citizens, merchants, bankers, and others, will be held at the Chamber of Commerce this day, at half-past 1 o'clock, with reference to the proposed testimonial to Admiral FARRAGUT.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Dec. 16.

HOOD'S OFFICIAL REPORT.

Gen. HOOD'S official report of the battle of Franklin has reached Richmond, and shows that he met with very heavy losses, especially of officers; among them are five Brigadier-Generals, and very many officers of lower grade, killed or wounded.

LYNCHBURGH.

The Richmond people, as appears from the news in to-day's papers, are annoyed by the news that a body of Union troops had entered Southwestern Virginia, and were advancing on Lynchburgh.

INVESTIGATIONS.

Messrs. WADE, GOOCH and ODELL, a sub-committee of the Congressional Committee on the Conduct of the War, will commence their investigations into the Iron-clads, recently constructed at the Charlestown Navy-yard, on Monday morning next. Messrs. CHANDLER and LOAN, of the same committee, go to-morrow to the Army of the Potomac, to take testimony on the Red River expedition.

THE NAVY-YARD FOR IRON-CLADS.

Congress will probably appoint a new commission to report on the best location for a navy-yard for iron-clads, as it will otherwise be impossible to obtain a decision between New-London and League Island.

BRAZIL'S DEMAND FOR REPARATION.

The demand of the Brazilian Government for reparation for the seizure of the Florida, is understood to have been insolent in tone. The reply of the Secretary of State, which has just been completed, is firm, yet conciliatory; not indorsing the seizure, and expressing a desire to have the matter fairly and satisfactorily adjusted between the two nations.

PAYMASTER-GENERAL OF NEW-YORK.

Major SELDEN E. MARVIN has been appointed Paymaste-General of the State of New-York, under the administration of Gov. FENTON. Maj. MARVIN has been in the United States service since the outbreak of the existing rebellion. He was originally an Assistant-Adjutant-General upon the staff of Gen. FOSTER, and in that capacity served in the early campaigns of the war upon the Carolina coast. He was subsequently made a Paymaster in the service, and has served in that capacity for the last two years; always receiving the commendation of his superior officers. This new appointment of Major MARVIN is one in every way worthy to be made, and reflects credit upon the discrimination of Gov. FENTON.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Dec. 16.

DESTRUCTION OF SALT WORKS.

Acting Rear-Admiral STRIBLING, commanding the East Gulf Squadron, reports to the Navy Department, under date of Dec. 3, the destruction of a set of salt works on Rocky Point, Old Tampa Bay, by detachments from the U. S. Steamers Stars and Stripes, Neta, Hendrick Hudson, and the Ariel. Several large boilers and everything of value connected with the works were demolished without a single casualty on our part.

AN IMPORTANT CASE.

The Supreme Court is now engaged with the important case of STONE vs. The United States, involving the title of the United States to a large and valuable part of the military reservation of Fort Leavenworth. J. M. CARLISLE and O. H. BROWNING, Esqrs., are for the claimants, and J. F. COFFEY, Esq., for the United States.

SWAIN'S DISMISSAL.

In February last, it will be recollected, Col. JAMES B. SWAIN, of New-York, commanding Scott's Nine Hundred, was dismissed the service, charged with being guilty of false musters, neglect of duty and disobedience of orders. Col. SWAIN, therefore, applied to the President for a court of inquiry. His application was referred by the President to Judge HOLT, who, it is understood, reported that from the evidence submitted by the department, and without any evidence on the part of Col. SWAIN, there was nothing to warrant his dismissal, and recommended that the President remove the disability consequent on his dismissal by order of the War Department.

THE MILITARY DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON.

Major-Gen. AUGUR, to-day, assumed command of the military district of Washington, thereby relieving Col. WISEWELL, which is considered equivalent to merging the department of Washington and the military district into one; although no specific orders to that effect have as yet been issued. Col. WISEWELL has also been relieved as Chief of the Veteran Reserve Corps Bureau, and ordered to Sandusky, Ohio, to assume command of Johnson's Island. Col. FITZ, President of the Examining Board, will doubtless succeed Col. WISEWELL as Chief of the bureau.

FROM GEN. GRANT'S ARMY.

Unusual Quiet—Pickets Reported Murdered.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Thursday, Dec. 15.

Unusual quiet has prevailed along the lines in front of Petersburgh the last few days, scarcely a shot being exchanged, excepting in the evening, on the right of the line.

Last night, however, quite an excitement was kept up from 8 to 10 o'clock, when the firing died away gradually, and after midnight not a shot was heard.

Of course, the pickets in the vicinity of Fort Hell were responsible for the outbreak, although some other parts of the line further west were participants.

A report is current that a number of our pickets, watching the rear of our lines, were taken and murdered the night before last, and that, in consequence, the force of men on this side has been doubled.

Changes are being made in the disposition of our troops, but there is nothing to indicate an early attack upon the enemy.

The Explosion at Dupont's Powder Mills.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, Dec. 16.

The explosion yesterday at Wilmington took place among the buildings in HAGLEY'S yard of DUPONT'S powder-mills. Six buildings were demolished and the lives of ten workmen lost. We are unable to ascertain the names of the victims. The residence of Mrs. ALEXIS DUPONT was badly shattered. No one of the family was injured.

ARRIVAL OF A PRIZE.—The prize steamer Hendry, Acting Ensign JOHN SMALL, Jr., Fortress Monroe, twenty-four hours, arrived here yesterday. The Hendry was captured the 8th inst., lat. 34° 15' long. 76° 43', by the United States gunboat Cherokee. She was from Wilmington, N. C., bound to Bermuda, with a cargo of naval stores and cotton. She is a new iron side-wheel steamer, and had made one trip between Wilmington and Bermuda.

Peace Resolutions in the North Carolina Legislature.

The following Peace resolutions have been introduced into the North Carolina Legislature:

Resolved, That five commissioners be appointed by this General Assembly, to act with commissioners from the other States of the Confederacy as a medium for negotiating a peace with the United States.

Resolved, That each of the other States of the Confederacy be respectfully requested to create a similar commission, with as little delay as practicable, and to cooperate with North Carolina in requesting of President DAVIS, in the name of these sovereign States, that he tender to the United States a condition for negotiating a peace through the medium of these commissioners.

Resolved, That the Governor make known to each of the other States of the Confederacy this action of the General Assembly of North Carolina, and endeavor to secure their coöperation.

Resolved, That whenever any five of the States shall have responded by the appointment of commissioners, the Governor shall communicate the proceeding officially to President DAVIS, and request his prompt action upon the proposition.

ELECTIONS IN THE NORTH CAROLINA LEGISLATURE.

RALEIGH, Thursday, Dec. 8.

In the Legislature to-day, Hon. T. S. ASHE was elected Confederate States Senator, and C. R. THOMAS, of Carteret, was made Secretary of State.

From Europe.

The Inman steamer Glasgow, Capt. GILL, which left Liverpool at 2 P. M. on the 23d, and Queenstown on the 24th November, arrived here yesterday morning. Her news is anticipated.

THE PRISON PEN AT FLORENCE, S. C.

Of the condition of the prison camp at Florence I can probably give no more comprehensive account than is furnished by one of the captives, Sergt. W. W. RIEKER, of the One Hundred and Fifty-third Ohio Regiment, who was employed as a clerk in the Hospital (!) Department, from whose diary I make some extracts:

Wednesday, Sept. 14.—Arrived at Florence, S. C., from Andersonville, Geo., at 4 P. M.

Thursday, Sept. 15.—Stopped all night in the cars, and kept there until 3 P. M.; then were marched out into an old field, where a guard was put round us. So here we are with all our hopes of being exchanged blasted, and the prospect of a Winter in the Confederacy before us. About 5,000 are penned up here.

Friday, Sept. 16.—Looking around over camp, and although a prisoner, I see many amusing scenes. Trading is very brisk; sweet potatoes, $50 per bushel; apples, $1 per dozen; molasses, $25 per gallon; bacon, $15 per pound; and other things in proportion. Greenbacks valued at $5 rebel money. Shoes are $75 to $100 per pair; boots, $200 to $300.

Saturday, Sept. 17.—Bought an Encyclopædia, printed in London in 1783, containing 1,100 pages, for eight brass buttons. Bought $2 50 worth in greenbacks of sweet potatoes, and cooked them all in one five quart bucket for supper for five of us. What would people North think of such prices?

Sunday, Sept. 18.—This day saw Dr. SAUNDERS, who took Tedron, Sutton, Benymer, Dobbins, Clark, and myself out and had us paroled. Went to work moving sick, about eight hundred in number, toward the place where the hospital is to be located, through a driving rain.

Monday, Sept. 19.—Oh God, and my country! what do not our poor soldiers suffer? Think of eight hundred poor sick men, many of them dying, lying out on the cold ground, in a cold east rain storm, without any shelter, and no food but one raw sweet potato each for supper.

Tuesday, Sept. 20.—This hospital beggars all description. There is no shelter but the trees. The sick are exposed to cold rains and winds that begin to blow chill and cold from the coast, with little and often no food, and with no medicines. Is it any wonder men die here rapidly? Great blame is attached somewhere—either to one or both Governments for this needless slaughter of brave men. We are hard at work trying to organize the hospital and get the men in a more comfortable condition.

* * * * * * *

Thursday, Sept. 22.—It is a pitiable sight to see the condition of the men here. Soldiers, the heroes of a hundred battles, lying here almost naked and nearly imbecile. Their minds are almost destroyed by suffering and hunger, and it is a pitiable sight to see strong men rendered idiotic by inhuman treatment such as we suffer. Would to God President LINCOLN and Commissioner BUTLER could be here to see the sights I have seen—the suffering, destitution and woe! Or better—could a procession of sick, such as I have seen, pass through the populous cities of the North, it would raise such a storm of indignation that would soon force an exchange at any cost and on any terms. I had thought before being taken prisoner that I had seen trouble and difficulty, that my life had been chequered with many cares, and that I had seen somewhat of suffering and misery among others, but the experience of the past three months has shown me a depth of woe and suffering such as I did not believe it possible for man to reach and live. I walk constantly among scenes that would cause the gay and busy North to thrill with horror, and cause wives, and sisters, and mothers, to go wild with sorrow, could they but see the sufferings of the loved ones they tearfully sent forth, long months ago, to battle for the old flag, and who have for weary months pined in Southern prisons worse than the dungeons of the Inquisition, until they have been brutalized by suffering, and almost lost the semblance of humanity. Oh, humanity! how low is it possible for you to sink! The prisoners have actually, as a mass, lost all semblance of humanity. Hundreds of them are taking the oath of allegiance to the Confederacy, having lost all patriotism through suffering. Well, such is life. But one thing is sure—I must suffer far more than I have yet before I renounce my country and my honor.

* * * * * * *

Thursday, Oct. 6.—Fourteen men died last night. A man named WHITE, who had lived in Savannah thirty years, came here to see his brother, who is a prisoner, and sick. Wrote a letter home, and he promised to mail it from Savannah.

Friday, Oct. 7.—Heavy rain, with thunder and lightning last night. Our new house leaked like a sieve. Set up part of the night, then rigged up a stretcher and slept on it. As disagreeable a night as I have spent lately.

Saturday, Oct. 8.—A large supply of sanitary stores and clothing for the sick are arriving and being distributed.

Sunday, Oct. 9.—Raw, cold day, though clear. Was very busy. Three hundred and thirty-two sick came in from Charleston, and it took all day to get them distributed in the wards. H. JORDAN, of the One Hundred and Fifty-third came in; gave him my blanket. Thirty-one men died last night.

Monday, Oct. 10.—Heavy frost yesterday morning, and this morning also. Most glorious day, reminding me of home. Drew drawers, shirts and socks from United States stores. C. JORDAN, of Company H, One Hundred and Fifty-third Ohio, died to-day. First death I know of in the regiment.

Tuesday, Oct 11.—It has been quite as cool here so far as in Ohio, requiring two and three blankets to keep warm at night. Twenty-two deaths last night.

Wednesday, Oct. 12.—Another superb day, reminding me of Indian Summer in Ohio. Suffer much with gathering in my ear. Twenty-two died last night also. Men are dying rapidly from exposure. How callous we become. Six months ago, the scenes I witness now would have made me shudder, but the sight of 100 ghastly faces in the dead-house moves me no more than so many logs of wood.

Thursday, Oct. 13.—Again last night 22 men died. People reading of Florence Prison Hospital would imagine probably a large building, airy and comfortable, with good beds, &c. In place of this the sick lie upon the ground, with a shelter of pine boughs that keeps off the sun but allows the rain to fall upon them as freely as though the boughs were not there. The patients have to do their own cooking, if they eat at all, in tin cups. No wonder men die at the rate of twenty-five a day out of 700 patients, or about four per cent each day.

* * * * * * *

Saturday, Oct. 22.—This has been a busy day. The whole hospital of over eight hundred men was moved into the stockades. It was terrible to see men so weak as to be unable to sit up, thrown into wagons to be moved; but it could be done in no other way. I had hoped all through the Summer and Fall to get home before Winter: but Winter is here almost, and exchange as far distant as ever. Have made up my mind to pass a long, dreary Winter among the awful scenes of a prison hospital. Men are already dying at the rate of thirty per day, and the prospect is that the number will be trebled before next month. I care not for myself, but for my wife and child, who must pass through the gloomy Winter days lonely and sad, without a word from me. May they be able to bear this long separation with fortitude, supported by the hope of a happy meeting in the future. God bless them.

President Petroleum Company,

This company promises to become one of the best-paying and managed in the country. It has an actual working capital of One Hundred Thousand Dollars, a greater portion of which has already been paid into its treasury, and is now being judiciously expended in the development of its lands, which have been put into the company at cost, being only one hundred dollars per acre, the lowest ever known for superior oil-bearing territory. The company has already received an offer for one-quarter of its land, which, if accepted, would pay back to the stockholders the original amount of their subscriptions. Its officers are gentlemen of high standing in the community, which insures its success. For further particulars, we refer to the advertisement in our columns.

I.
FOREST PICTURES IN THE ADIRONDACKS.
BY JOHN A. HOWS.
WITH ORIGINAL POEMS, BY ALFRED B. STREET.

A superb series of illustrations depicting that region in Northern New-York which recently has become so greatly the favorite of artists, tourists and sportsmen. The distinctive features of its "Forest Pictures" have been happily caught by Mr. Hows' pencil. The volume will commend itself to all lovers of the picturesque, and to friends of American art. It is one of the most NOTABLE, ORIGINAL and ARTISTIC issues yet produced from the American press. Quarto, cloth, extra gilt, $4 50; full morocco, $8.

II.
LYRICS OF THE WAR.
ILLUSTRATED BY F. O. C. DARLEY.

A most beautiful volume, containing a selection of Lyrics on the War, each poem illustrated by a full-paged drawing by F. O. C. Darley. The book is in every way elegant and unique, and will be valued as a worthy art monument of the war. One quarto, 32 pages. The present edition is handsomely illustrated with six designs in colors, and printed with elegance, on heavy calendered paper. It is one of the most unique and attractive minor gift volumes of the season. Cloth, extra, beveled boards, gilt sides. Price $1 50.

This little work is perhaps the finest specimen of color printing yet executed in America. It ranks altogether above ordinary pictorial books for children, and Mr. Stoddard has told the adventures of Riding Hood in verses that give a new and exquisite charm to the story. The work is novel, unique and elegant. Quarto, illuminated paper cover. Price 80 cents.

V.

We have had Mr. E. E. Hendrick's LUBRICATING OIL in use for somewhat more than a year upon our Coal, Passenger and Freight Cars (about 15,000 journals,) upon our Stationary Engines—more than twenty in number—and in our Machine Shop, and find it entirely satisfactory. Our engineers and machinists all concur in recommending it as superior to any lubricator we have heretofore used. It is fully equal to the best sperm.
I will also state that, in my opinion, it has no equal for use upon a sewing-machine, as I have witnessed its effects in my own house. CHAS. P. WURTS,

BEST QUALITY
LOCUST MOUNTAIN WHITE ASH COAL
AT FIRST COST.
THE NEW-YORK
MUTUAL COAL COMPANY.
CAPITAL STOCK, $500,000.

Number of Shares	20,000
Par Value of Each Share	$25
Working Capital, in Cash	50,000

Each share entitles the holder to receive every year, for fifteen successive years, one ton of first quality Locust Mountain White Ash Coal, at cost; also a cash dividend every six months of the profits from the sale of all surplus coal.
Shareholders who do not desire to receive their coal may have their proportion sold by the company, for their especial benefit, the profits being paid over to them, independent of the regular cash dividends to which they are entitled.
Shareholders may order their coal in any of the usual sizes, viz: lump, broken, egg, stove, or nut coal, at the actual cost price, delivered at the dwellings, or at other places within the city of New-York or Brooklyn. Manufacturers' coal delivered in cargo.
Coal will be supplied to the shareholders immediately.
The Trustees have already secured one of the largest, most reliable and best equipped Collieries in Pennsylvania, including double breaker, engines, miners' houses, slope works, railroad tracks, cars, mules, and all the necessary machinery, implements, lumber, &c.; the whole in perfect working order, and NOW IN FULL OPERATION, having been in use but eight months.
The Colliery is located near Ashland, in Schuylkill Co., Pa., and the coal produced from it is of the very best quality of "Locust Mountain," and is the same as now recommended by all the coal dealers, and used by families in the cities of New-York and Brooklyn, and is mined under the most favorable circumstances, and at the least possible cost, as the coal is taken from the mine above the water level, and can be mined at all times at a profit. This coal is taken from the celebrated "Mammoth" vein, which, with the "Skidmore," "Primrose," and other celebrated veins, extend within the lines of the company, equal to three miles in length.
A branch of the Reading Rail road extends to the mines of this company, over which all coal is now daily brought to market. The very best and most reliable facilities have already been secured, or the transportation of the company's coal to this market.
This company being the "pioneer" in the "coal at cost" enterprise in this State, and being exclusively a New-York company, for the accommodation of its citizens, and as the price of each share is within the reach of everybody, it is fully expected that our citizens will come forward and subscribe for the stock without delay.
Books for subscription are now open at the office of each Trustee in the City of New-York, where any additional information can be furnished.

PUBLISHED THIS DAY,
THE MAGIC WHEEL.
A beautiful Christmas Toy for children. Nos. 1 and 2. Price $1 50 each.
From the Commercial Advertiser, Oct. 28.
Is one of the most interesting and amusing things of the kind ever invented. By looking through perforations in the rim of the Magic Wheel, while it is revolving, very simple pictures on circular pieces of pasteboard are made, by the aid of a mirror, to assume the shape of living and moving creatures, and to perform the most wonderful antics. The mode in which the illusion is produced would puzzle grown people, while children, without inquiring into the whys and wherefores, are delighted with the performances of the Magic Wheel.
A REMARKABLE NOVEL! Will be published, Dec. 15, by JOHN BRADBURN, (successor to M. Doolady,) No. 49 Walker-st., New-York,
"THE MORRISONS,"
A Story of Domestic Life. By Mrs. MARGARET HOSMER. One Volume, neat beveled Cloth, $2.
Of this book, a competent critic remarks: "The Author of 'THE MORRISONS' is to be congratulated upon having produced a capital novel, and one calculated to win for her considerable reputation. I confess myself greatly pleased with the book, and am confident of its success as a literary venture. I know of no better work of fiction more full of the elements of popularity, none more truly characterized by the proper blending of all that makes up the successful novel. The characters are, for the most part, those of every-day life, neither overdrawn nor highly colored. The story is one of sustained and absorbing interest, increasing in its hold upon the reader as he proceeds toward the denouement. Some of the scenes are intensely wrought, while throughout the whole there is much of real, honest, home-life, that no freak occurs to mar or jar the pleasing ensemble. Around the pivoted figure, BESS SAUNDERS, the others revolve as harmoniously and appropriately, as the spheres of a Planetarium.
In the style there is a sprightliness, by no means common in modern novels, and a blessed absence of the wearisome didactics and dialogue which are the leaden weight of works of fiction now-a-days. Nothing strained or stilted breaks the thread on which the plot is hung, and so easy and unstudied is the phraseology of the book that the reader is little likely to have the attention drawn off from studying character into the study of style. The scenery and portraits leave little of the canvas visible. I predict for 'The Morrisons' a very large sale and permanent popularity."
To insure prompt delivery, orders should be sent in at once.

CHICKERING & SONS
MANUFACTURERS OF GRAND, SQUARE, AND UPRIGHT PIANO-FORTES, No. 652 BROADWAY.—The superiority of these instruments has of late been amply demonstrated by the voluntary testimony of the foremost artists of the day, who claim for them excellencies of tone and workmanship hitherto unobtained by any other makers.
Mr. GOTTSCHALK'S constant use of the NEW SCALE CHICKERING GRAND PIANO-FORTES has severely tested their musical qualities, and resulted in establishing the justice of the very flattering estimation in which they are held.
Messrs. CHICKERING & SONS are Sole Agents for the celebrated Alexandre Organs for the United States.

TESTIMONIAL FROM THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ARTISTS
TO STEINWAY & SONS.
The piano-fortes, grand, square and upright, manufactured by Messrs. Steinway & Sons, have established for themselves so world-wide a reputation that it is hardly possible for us to add anything to their just fame. Having thoroughly tested and tried these instruments personally for years, both in public and private, it becomes our pleasant duty to express our candid opinion regarding their unquestioned superiority over any other piano known to us.
Among the chief points of their uniform excellence are: Greatest possible depth, richness and volume of tone, combined with a rare brilliancy, clearness, and perfect evenness throughout the entire scale, and above all a surprising duration of sound, the pure and sympathetic quality of which never changes under the most delicate or powerful touch. This peculiarity is found exclusively in the Steinway Piano, and, together with the matchless precision, elasticity, and promptness of action, always characterizing these instruments, as their unequaled durability under the severest trials, is truly surprising, and claims at once the admiration of every artist. We, therefore, consider the "Steinway" pianos in all respects by far the best instruments made in this country or Europe, use them solely and exclusively ourselves, in public or private, and recommend them invariably to our friends and the public.
We have at different times expressed our opinion regarding the pianos of various makers, but freely and unhesitatingly pronounce STEINWAY & SONS' PIANOS, BOTH GRAND, AND SQUARE, INCOMPARABLY SUPERIOR TO THEM ALL.

ESTABLISHED IN 1829.
RAVEN & BACON,
PIANO MANUFACTURERS,
No. 135 Grand-st., near Broadway, New-York.
The musical profession having of late become quite prominent in connection with newspaper advertisements of four or five piano manufacturers in this city, each firm claiming superiority for their instruments from the indorsement of the many distinguished artists, we fear the innocent public, unacquainted with the tricks of the trade, may find themselves mystified as to where to select the best piano for their holiday gifts.
We would state that, as our pianos have been favorably known in this market for nearly forty years, it has not been necessary for us to obtain the opinion of the profession in regard to their quality, the instruments speaking for themselves. We are continually introducing improvements in our pianos, and they are up to the age in every particular. Parties desiring pianos will do well to examine our stock and prices before making their selections.

GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS are now considered the best in Europe as well as this country, having received the first Prize Medal at the World's Exhibition in London, 1862.

MEETING OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC CHARITIES AND CORRECTION.—At a regular meeting of the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, Dec. 15, 1864, the following concluding extract from the opinion of Judge Edward P. Cowles, appointed by the Superior Court of the City of New-York Referee in the first suit against the Commissioners of Emigration, was ordered to be published. Thus setting the principle of liability on the part of that Commission for the support of emigrants, who have been forced upon the charities of this city, and for which there still remain a large amount of indebtedness on account of paupers, vagrants and others, who have been cared for in our public institutions, irrespective of their legitimate claim on the fund created by themselves.
The last payment made on this account by the Emigrant Commission was on the 10th day of November, 1854, since which time further payment has been refused by them for what had been agreed upon, and for which disbursement was made out of funds appropriated by the city.
"And upon the facts so found, I do further find as conclusions of law, that the defendants have become and are liable to pay to the plaintiffs the several sums hereinbefore found to have been incurred by them, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of eighteen thousand three hundred and twenty-two dollars and twelve cents, with interest as hereinafter stated, out of the funds and moneys received and now on hand by the defendants as aforesaid."
"Second—That the said plaintiffs are entitled to judgment in this action, that they do recover of the defendants, the Commissioners of Emigration, the sum of eighteen thousand three hundred and twenty-two dollars and twelve cents,

FRIDAY, Dec. 16—P. M.

We understand that the various subscriptions to the 10-40 years 5 ℔ cent. Gold-bearing Loan of the United States, in this city, to-day, amount to $750,000. The usual daily subscriptions to the 7-30 ℔ cent. Popular Loan, convertible after three years into 5-20 years 6 ℔ cent. Gold-bearing stock, were also made at the different National Banks. It is understood that the 10-40 Loan will be withdrawn after the first series of $100,000,000 is filled up. The balance to be taken is now only about $17,000,000, and it is not improbable that they will be closed out next week, as the Bonds subscribed for last Summer are in demand at the Stock Exchange at a fraction above the rate and interest at which new subscriptions can be made by the public, if applied for before combinations are made to take the balance by a single subscription among the Banks and prominent Wall-street firms specially devoted to the distribution of the National Securities. After this is done, the 7-30 ℔ cents will be the only Popular Loan before the public for subscription at par.

At the Stock Exchange the Gold-bearing Stocks of the United States were again firm, and holders indisposed to offer large parcels at the going rates. Treasury Certificates, in which there is a constant large business on Wall-street, were steady. The Railway list opened on a depression of 2¼@3 ℔ cent. on New-York Central, because of the unfavorable interpretation of the Annual Report in respect to the increased operating expenses of the line. The fall in this leading Stock caused the other New-York and most of the Western Roads to drag through the morning Board. In the afternoon the feeling somewhat improved, and at the close of dealings the following prices were made in comparison with Thursday. Among the Miscellaneous Shares there is a further decline on Cumberland Coal. The Money market 7 ℔ cent. to the Brokers, and fairly easy. The Gold Room ranged 233¾@234¼ ℔ cent.; standing a fraction below 234 ℔ cent. at close of 'Change hour.

The following additional particulars from the Annual Report of the New-York Central will show the distribution of the expenses of the year:

It will be borne in mind that the charter of consolidation granted by the Legislature in 1853 limited the local passenger fares on the Central line to two cents per mile, which if only partially remunerative on the Specie basis before the War, is at present inadequate to the increased scale of expenses for running the passenger trains and maintaining the equipment.

The Mendota Mining Company.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your notice of the Mendota Mining Company in this morning's TIMES, several typographical errors occur, which I beg you will allow me to correct, as both the meaning of your article and that of the report—of which it is an abstract—are sacrificed by the mistake of the compositor. You are made to say that, "the Company have in land $29,383 cash means, &c.," This should be the Company have in hand, &c., &c.

The land of the Company is estimated to be worth, at a very moderate valuation, the entire capital, ($500,000.)

The Company own 4,339 89-100 acres, and among the offers to purchase which they have received is one of $100,000 for a single half section, (320 acres,) while for town lots and sites for smelting furnaces they are offered $500 per acre and upwards. Your typo in another place makes you write, "The latest sales of the revenue stock," &c. In this sentence for "revenue stock" please read "reserved stock." By inserting this in your next issue you will much oblige.

C. S. SEYTON, President M. M. Co,

A QUERY ANSWERED.

COLTON DENTAL ASSOCIATION.
No. 19 Cooper Institute, Dec. 16, 1864.

I am often asked by patients who have inhaled the nitrous oxide, or "laughing gas," and had teeth extracted, why it is that the same gas, breathed in small doses, will exhilarate, and in larger doses will induce sleep and insensibility to pain.

The best answer I can give is this; When one limb is crossed over the other, the foot goes to sleep—in other words, the nerves in the foot are temporarily paralized. There is no sensation in the foot, neither can the muscles be moved. This paralysis results from pressing the artery at the knee, which cuts off a portion of the blood or nourishment to the nerves of the foot. Not having the usual stimulant, the nerves go to sleep.

The laughing gas produces the same effect all over the body, but from the very opposite course, viz.: an increase of life and vitality, over-exhilaration. It is the oxygen in the air which gives life and vitality to the blood. The laughing gas contains a much larger proportion of oxygen than the air. When the gas is breathed, more oxygen is taken into the blood, and it begins to wake the nerves up to a higher life and vitality than natural. This goes on, carrying the nervous excitement so far above the normal and natural state that the ordinary functions of the nerves (to convey a sense of pain, or to move the muscles,) is entirely suspended. In going into, and returning from, this state of insensibility, a prickling sensation is experienced in all the extremities, just as in the foot when it is going to sleep. In the foot the nerves go to sleep from a lack of nourishment. The sleep produced by the gas is from an excess of nourishment. The one from a decrease of vitality, the other from an excess of vitality. Both are carried away from the medium, normal and natural condition. Chloroform and other produce insensibility by depressing the nervous system. (They contain no oxygen.) The laughing gas produces the same results by increasing the nervous vitality till it is overpowered. Chloroform and ether nearly stop the pulse. The gas increases it. Reaction and depression follow the use of chloroform and ether. No such effect follows the use of the gas. The gas can be given to the most delicate and feeble with safety. No unpleasant or dangerous symptoms attend or follow its use. I have had eminent physicians in this city call upon me for the gas to give to patients who were dying, (the lungs being in a state of asphyxia,) merely to prolong life a few hours. Surely, if the life of a patient who is dying can be prolonged a few hours by the gas, it must be a safe anæsthetic agent. I have given it now to over three thousand patients, all of whom had their teeth extracted without pain, and in no instance have I known any ill effects to attend the operation. If the gas were not perfectly safe, some one of these patients would have been injured by it. I breathe a dose of the gas every day myself, before giving it to others, to test its purity. I am now administering about one hundred gallons of the gas per day.—[Advertisement.] G. Q. COLTON.

Dr. W. H. Gregg:

DEAR SIR: I have been suffering for a long time with what physicians call Disease of the Prostate Gland, and Retention of Urine, and was unable to obtain any relief until I used CONSTITUTION WATER, which began to produce its curative effect after taking one or two doses, and no man can be more grateful than I at the results, having suffered all that a man could suffer and live; and rather than be deprived of the medicine, I would be willing to pay Fifty Dollars a bottle for it.

It has not only cured me, but several other officers in my district have been cured by it, and I would recommend everybody suffering from any diseases of the kidneys to use Constitution Water.

Extract from the Author's Preface.

With a sincere gratitude to his Christian brethren, and to his publishers in England and America, he desires to acknowledge the singular and entirely unexpected success which the little book has enjoyed. It has brought him kindly greetings and pleasant letters from the most distant and from some of the most obscure portions of the earth. It has gained him some of the most enviable of friendships. In foreign travel it has opened his way to cottages and to castles: he found it on the shelves of Eton boys and in the rooms of grave Fellows of the Universities. In Ireland he was presented with a curious series of imitations of Dreamland, some grave and some comical; and to Scotland and Wales he owes some of his happiest recollections in incidents connected with the circulation of the ballads, in several forms. To Count Tasca, the eminent poet and patriot of Northern Italy, he is indebted for the introduction of several of them to his countrymen, in spirited translations; and the Comte de Montalembert has unwittingly connected a stanza from one of them with a book which will be ever memorable in the history of the French Empire.

From the Church Journal

One of the most welcome gift books of the season will be the new illustrated edition of Dr. Coxe's Christian Ballads—the most popular volume of Churchly verse which has appeared since Keble's Christian Year. Since their first appearance, twenty-four years ago, successive editions have been constantly in demand, both in England and in this country. Count Tasca has translated a number of these charming ballads into Italian, and they are added in an appendix to the present volume. Count de Montalembert has curiously illustrated the degree to which they have become a common possession in all parts of Great Britain, by describing, in one of his finest orations, the reception of the Queen of England at the opening of the People's Park, when the verses of welcome, sung by 40,000 children of English schools, were selected from these Christian Ballads of Dr Coxe. It is well to clothe such an established favorite with all the charms of presswork and tinted paper, exquisite engraving and chaste binding. Mr. John A. Hows has embodied his highest skill in the larger designs that are the chief adornments of this edition; and the engraving of several of them, by Bobbet & Hooper, is a high bid for equality with the best English engravers, smaller and more varied embellishments are profusely added; and the whole makes one of the choicest volumes of the season.

From the Newark Daily Advertiser.

A quarter of a century has elapsed since these ballads were first published, and their intrinsic merit caused their young author to be accorded a high position on the roll of Christian poets. Time has not detracted from their merit, and in this edition they have been profusely illustrated and adorned by handsomely executed engravings, making the volume one of the most attractive issued for the approaching season of gifts.

From the Journal of Commerce.

A superb volume from the Appleton's is "Christian Ballads," by Rev. A. CLEVELAND COXE, most elaborately illustrated and ornamented. The introduction contains something of a history of the popularity which Mr. Coxe's poems have enjoyed in this and other countries, and may be accepted as a justification of the very elegant style in which this volume is published.

LION-HEARTED. By MRS. GREY. Author of "The Gambler's Wife," "Good Society," "Duke and Cousin," etc., etc. Complete in one large octavo volume. Price 75 cents.

Read the following notice of it from the London Atheneum:

"Bona Lyne, the weak, passionate, impressionable girl, always wanting to 'sacrifice herself' and unable to do the most simple duty; with ardent sensibilities and no principles, yet capable of passionate remorse, is a character well conceived and true to life. Mr. Fielden, the worthless, thriftless, fascinating clergyman, who is over head in debts, is well conceived. The easy vanity with which he accepts Bona's romantic devotion; the willingness to do anything that promises extrication from immediate difficulties, even to aiding an Italian adventurer to marry Bona, who has a nice little fortune, are well drawn. He works upon the poor girl's conscience, and uses his influence over her to induce her to consent to the marriage, by making her believe that it will be for his benefit. Mr. Fielden's wife, a good woman, with the life crushed out of her by her fascinating husband, is also well imagined. The Italian adventurer is not badly imagined; his melo-dramatic bursts of passion and jealousy, and his genuinely diabolical temper, are well calculated to work on a girl like Bona; whilst the fascination he exercises over her, and the mixture of remorse, foolishness and generosity with which she persists in 'sacrificing herself,' are suggestive of a good story."
